

Regulating Recognition in Redfern

Aboriginal Organisations and the Construction of their Corporate Aboriginal Identity

een wetenschappelijke proeve op het gebied van de Sociale Wetenschappen

Proefschrift

ter verkrijging van de graad van doctor
aan de Katholieke Universiteit Nijmegen, op gezag van de Rector Magnificus prof. dr. C.W.P.M. Blom, volgens besluit van het College van Decanen in het openbaar te verdedigen op woensdag 11 september 2002
des namiddags om 1.30 uur precies door Janneke Hulsker
geboren op 28 oktober 1970
te Vlaardingen

Table of Contents

Acknowledgments 10

1 Introduction: Working in Redfern 11

- 1.1 The Argument 12
 - 1.1.1 Redfern 13
 - 1.1.2 Aboriginal Organisations 15
 - 1.1.3 Urban Aboriginal Identity 16
 - 1.1.4 The Credibility of a Corporate Identity 20
- 1.2 Fieldwork Methodology 22
 - 1.2.1 Advocacy and Academics 24
 - 1.2.2 Gaining Confidence 26
 - 1.2.3 Maintaining the Working Relationship 31
- 1.3 Introducing the Thesis 34

2 The Reality of Redfern: The Aboriginal History of a Metropolitan Suburb 38

- 2.1 Historical Background of Aboriginal People in Sydney 39
 - 2.1.1 First Contact: 1788-1849 40
 - 2.1.2 Legally Defined and Dominated: 1850-1939 42
 - 2.1.3 Aboriginal Protest and Australian Acceptance: 1940-1999 45
- 2.2 The Making of Aboriginal Redfern 48
 - 2.2.1 Aboriginal Migration to Redfern 49
 - 2.2.2 The Aboriginal Legal Service Redfern 51
 - 2.2.3 The Aboriginal Medical Service 54
 - 2.2.4 The Aboriginal Housing Company 55
 - 2.2.5 The Aboriginal Tent Embassy and Other Initiatives 61
 - 2.2.6 Redfern in 1996 63
- 2.3 Racism, Raids and Riots 68
 - 2.3.1 Aboriginal People and the Australian Justice System 71
 - 2.3.2 Aboriginal-Police Relations 76
 - 2.3.3 Redfern in the Media 80

3 Making a Difference: Features and Functions of Aboriginal Organisations 84

- 3.1 Why the Aboriginal Organisations Were Set up 85
 - 3.1.1 Lack of Proper Services 86
 - 3.1.2 Inspiration from Other Activists 88
 - 3.1.3 Changing Attitude Towards Aboriginal People 92
- 3.2 Features of Aboriginal Organisations 93
 - 3.2.1 The Role of Women 94
 - 3.2.2 Equality Between Staff Members 97
 - 3.2.3 Loyalty Towards the Organisation 100
 - 3.2.4 Informality at the Workplace 102
- 3.3 Functions of Aboriginal Organisations 104
 - 3.3.1 Remedial Function 105
 - 3.3.2 Preventive Function 107
 - 3.3.3 Social Function 108
 - 3.3.4 Buffer Function 109
 - 3.3.5 Political Function 110
 - 3.3.6 Psychological Function 113

4 One Aboriginal People or Many? Aboriginal Identification in an Urban Setting 116

- 4.1 Early Forms of Aboriginal Identification 117
- 4.2 Multiple Variations of Aboriginal Identification in Sydney 119
 - 4.2.1 An Aboriginal Protest in Sydney 120
 - 4.2.2 Indigenosity 121
 - 4.2.3 Kooriness 126
 - 4.2.4 Local Identifications 129
- 4.3 Introducing Three Urban Aboriginal Discourses 135

5 Confront, Challenge and Change: Aboriginal Organisations and Government Authorities 139

- 5.1 Aboriginal Organisations and Federal and State Institutions 141
 - 5.1.1 The Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Commission 145
 - 5.1.2 Funding Requirements 148
- 5.2 The End of the Aboriginal Legal Service Redfern 150

- 5.2.1 Political Role of the Aboriginal Legal Service Redfern 152
- 5.2.2 Diminishing Support Base Within the Community 156
- 5.2.3 Liberal Government Coming Into Power in 1996 158
- 5.3 Resistance as Strategy of Identification 160
 - 5.3.1 The Oral Submission of the Aboriginal Legal Service Redfern 161
 - 5.3.2 Oppression and the Representation of Aboriginal Identity 163
 - 5.3.3 Aggression and the non-Aboriginal 168

6 Mixed Membership Mayhem: Aboriginal Organisations and Non-Aboriginal Supporters 175

- 6.1 The National Aboriginal History and Heritage Council 177
 - 6.1.1 The Activities of the National Aboriginal History and Heritage Council 178
 - 6.1.2 Outside Influences 185
 - 6.1.3 Being Non-Aboriginal in an Aboriginal Organisation 188
- 6.2 The National Aboriginal History and Heritage Forum 195
 - 6.2.1 The Legitimacy of Non-Aboriginal Membership 196
 - 6.2.2 What's in a Name? 200

7 Claims on Culture: Aboriginal Organisations and Their Clients 207

- 7.1 Aboriginal Organisations and the Community 209
- 7.2 Sharing Culture: The Saturday and After School Programme 213
 - 7.2.1 Social Environment and Kin Relations 216
 - 7.2.2 Spiritual Environment and the Dreamtime 220
 - 7.2.3 Ecological Environment and the Importance of Land 223
 - 7.2.4 Authenticity and the Invention of Tradition 226
- 7.3 Continuing Culture: The Young Mothers Programme 230
 - 7.3.1 Endangered Traditions 232
- 7.4 Cultural Continuity as Strategy of Identification 236

8 Minding the Messenger: Aboriginal Organisations and Their Staff Members 241

- 8.1 Connections Between Redfern Aboriginal Organisations 242
- 8.2 Rocking the Nest: The Aboriginal Housing Company 246
 - 8.2.1 The Company's Plan of Action 247
 - 8.2.2 Their View on the Block 250
- 8.3 Renovation, Not Relocation: The Aboriginal Housing Coalition 255
 - 8.3.1 The Coalition's Plans of Action 256
 - 8.3.2 Their View on the Block 260
- 8.4 Descent as Strategy of Identification 264
 - 8.4.1 Things to Fight Over 265
 - 8.4.2 Kin, Style and Skin: How to Gain and Maintain Recognition 268
 - 8.4.3 The Importance of Individual Recognition 273

9 The Beginning of Understanding: Concluding Remarks 277

- 9.1 Summarising the Argument 277
 - 9.1.1 Aboriginality as Resistance 279
 - 9.1.2 Aboriginality as Cultural Continuity 283
 - 9.1.3 Aboriginality as Descent 286
- 9.2 Conclusion 289

References 293

Appendices 309

Abbreviations 321

List of Aboriginal Words 322

Summary 321

Samenvatting 331

Curriculum Vitae 339