

Powers of theory

Capitalism, the state, and democracy

ROBERT R. ALFORD

University of California, Santa Cruz

ROGER FRIEDLAND

University of California, Santa Barbara

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge

London New York New Rochelle

Melbourne Sydney

Contents

|   |                  |
|---|------------------|
| Preface   | page xiii |
| Acknowledgments   | xv               |
| Introduction: State and society in theoretical perspective | 1         |
| The state and theory  | 1                |
| The home domain of each perspective                               | 4                |
| Our view of the state   | 6                |
| Power and contradictions in the state                             | 7                |
| The logics of capitalism, bureaucracy, and democracy              | 11               |
| Conclusions   | 13               |
| 1 Theoretical perspectives as modes of inquiry             | 15        |
| Levels of analysis  | 16               |
| World view  | 18               |
| Method  | 21               |
| Central societal process  | 23               |
| Dimensions of society   | 25               |
| The state and society   | 26               |
| The power of concepts   | 26               |
| Capitalism, the state, and democracy                              | 30               |
| Conclusions   | 32               |
| PART I: THE PLURALIST PERSPECTIVE                      |                  |
| 2 State and society in pluralist perspective               | 35        |
| The pluralist home domain   | 35               |
| The pluralist world view  | 37               |
| The state   | 41               |
| Values  | 41               |

|  |            |
|--|------------|
| Individuals  | 43         |
| Functions  | 43         |
| The implicit state   | 44         |
| Capitalism, democracy, and the state: the pluralist view           | 47         |
| Modernization  | 47         |
| Political participation  | 49         |
| Political development  | 52         |
| Consensus versus participation                                     | 54         |
| Conclusions  | 57         |
|    |            |
| 3 The democratic state and consensus                        | 59  |
| Democracy  | 59         |
| Political culture: the societal level                              | 61         |
| Modernization and democracy  | 69         |
| Collective goals: the organizational level                         | 70         |
| Support for legislatures   | 72         |
| Alienation versus efficacy and trust: the individual level         | 76         |
| Socialization of leadership  | 79         |
| Conclusions  | 82         |
|    |            |
| 4 The democratic state and participation                    | 83  |
| Social movements and party systems: the societal level             | 85         |
| The institutionalization of a social movement                      | 85         |
| Party systems: a key mediating institution                         | 89         |
| Interest groups and parties: the organizational level              | 91         |
| Opinions, voting, and protest: the individual level                | 95         |
| Public opinion   | 95         |
| Voting and political issues  | 101        |
| The social control of protest                                      | 107        |
| Conclusions  | 111        |
|    |            |
| 5 The pluralist perspective on the bureaucratic state       | 112 |
| Bureaucratization and democracy                                    | 113        |
| Bureaucratic functions and institutions: the societal level        | 115        |
| Institutionalization: the capacity to govern                       | 117        |
| Bureaucratic cultures and responsiveness: the organizational level | 119        |
| Authority relations  | 120        |
| Cooptation by constituencies                                       | 123        |
| Agency cultures  | 125        |
| The flow of benefits   | 128        |

|  |            |
|--|------------|
| Bureaucratic roles: the individual level                                   | 128        |
| The budgetary process  | 129        |
| Conclusions  | 134        |
| 6 The pluralist perspective on the capitalist state                 | 136 |
| Values and functions in the economy: the societal level                    | 137        |
| Political leadership and economic growth                                   | 143        |
| Democracy and the market   | 146        |
| Business and corporate power: the organizational level                     | 148        |
| Citizenship rights: the individual level                                   | 153        |
| Conclusions  | 156        |
| Epilogue: the problem of governance  | 157        |
| PART II: THE MANAGERIAL PERSPECTIVE                             |            |
| 7 State and society in managerial perspective                       | 161 |
| The managerial home domain   | 161        |
| The managerial world view  | 164        |
| Power and structure  | 169        |
| Society, state, and organizations  | 171        |
| Capitalism, democracy, and the state: the managerial view                  | 174        |
| Industrialization  | 175        |
| Elite competition  | 176        |
| Rationalization  | 178        |
| Bureaucratic functions versus elite strategies                             | 181        |
| Conclusions  | 182        |
| 8 The bureaucratic state and centralization                         | 184 |
| The historical establishment of bureaucratic states:the societal level | 185        |
| Centralization: the organizational level                                   | 192        |
| The process of centralization  | 196        |
| Elites and masses: the individual level                                    | 198        |
| Conclusions  | 201        |
| 9 The bureaucratic state and fragmentation                          | 202 |
| Breakdown of elite capacity: the societal level                            | 202        |
| Fragmentation of the state: the organizational level                       | 209        |
| Vertical fragmentation in the federal state                                | 210        |
| Horizontal fragmentation   | 215        |
| Political and bureaucratic dilemmas: the individual level                  | 219        |
| Conclusions  | 222        |

|  |  |            |
|--|--|------------|
| 10                                  | The managerial perspective on the capitalist state    | 223 |
|  | The managerial critique of class analysis                    | 223        |
|  | Corporatism and state planning: the societal level           | 227        |
|  | Corporatism  | 234        |
|  | Corporate power: the organizational level                    | 238        |
|  | Economic and administrative elites: the individual level     | 243        |
|  | Conclusions  | 249        |
| 11                                  | The managerial perspective on the democratic state    | 250 |
|  | The managerial view of democracy                             | 250        |
|  | Strategies of elite domination: the societal level           | 254        |
|  | Elite manipulation: the organizational level                 | 259        |
|  | Collective action: the individual level                      | 263        |
|  | Conclusions  | 267        |
| PART III: THE CLASS PERSPECTIVE |  |            |
| 12                                  | State and society in class perspective                | 271 |
|  | The class home domain  | 271        |
|  | The functional versus the political approach to the state    | 273        |
|  | Capitalism, democracy, and the state: the class view         | 279        |
|  | Capital accumulation   | 280        |
|  | Class struggle   | 281        |
|  | Socialization of the costs of production                     | 284        |
|  | Conclusions  | 285        |
| 13                                  | The capitalist state and accumulation                 | 288 |
|  | Class and state formation: the societal level                | 288        |
|  | Corporate capital and state policy: the organizational level | 296        |
|  | The ruling class and the working class: the individual level | 301        |
|  | Conclusions  | 307        |
| 14                                  | The capitalist state and class struggle               | 308 |
|  | The debate over the nature of capitalist crisis              | 308        |
|  | Crisis of the mode of production: the societal level         | 313        |
|  | Accumulation versus legitimation: the organizational level   | 317        |
|  | Class consciousness and class culture: the individual level  | 325        |
|  | Conclusions  | 330        |
| 15                                  | The class perspective on the democratic state         | 333 |
|  | Democracy and capitalism                                     | 333        |
|  | Class alliances and revolution: the societal level           | 340        |

|   |            |
|---|------------|
| Trade unions, parties, and movements: the organizational level        | 345        |
| The historical conditions of political choice: the individual level   | 353        |
| Conclusions   | 359        |
| 16 The class perspective on the bureaucratic state             | 361 |
| Bureaucracy and capitalism  | 362        |
| The changing needs of capital: the societal level                     | 367        |
| Public bureaucracies and class conflict: the organizational level     | 372        |
| The Department of Labor   | 372        |
| The U.S. Post Office  | 373        |
| The Chicago schools   | 376        |
| The legal repression of consciousness: the individual level           | 378        |
| Conclusions   | 382        |
| PART IV: THEORY, POLITICS, AND CONTRADICTIONS IN THE STATE |            |
| 17 The powers of theory  | 387 |
| The powers of theory  | 388        |
| Theoretical perspectives  | 389        |
| Concepts, science, and truth  | 394        |
| The state in history  | 400        |
| Public policy and the media: the invisibility of theory               | 401        |
| Conclusions   | 405        |
| 18 The power of politics                                       | 408 |
| Theoretical conceptions of politics                                   | 409        |
| The political spectrum  | 410        |
| Liberal and conservative politics                                     | 412        |
| Reform and reactionary politics                                       | 415        |
| Socialist and fascist politics  | 417        |
| Institutional tendencies and political types                          | 419        |
| The power of politics   | 421        |
| Politics and institutions   | 423        |
| Conclusions   | 424        |
| 19 The power of contradictions                                 | 427 |
| Historical relations of capitalism, the state, and democracy          | 427        |
| The logics of institutional development                               | 428        |

|                                   |     |
|-----------------------------------|-----|
| The logic of capitalism           | 429 |
| The logic of bureaucracy          | 430 |
| The logic of democracy            | 430 |
| Contradictory logics of the state | 432 |
| Internal contradictions           | 433 |
| Conclusions                       | 440 |
|                               |     |
| Glossary                          | 444 |
| Bibliography                      | 452 |
| Name index                        | 468 |
| Subject index                     | 473 |

Tables and figure

Tables

|   |    |
|---|----|
| 1. Power and contradiction in perspectives on the state       | 10 |
| 2. Theoretical perspectives and elements of a mode of inquiry | 16 |
| 3. Levels of analysis and levels of abstraction               | 21 |

Figure

|                           |     |
|---------------------------|-----|
| 1. The political spectrum | 411 |
|---------------------------|-----|