A Process of Struggle

The Campaign for Corby Steelmaking in 1979

ALLEN MAUNDERS Department of Education, Keele University

Gower

Contents

illu	strations	vii
		viii
CTION		ix
1	The Campaign in Context: Corby and its steelworks; recent history.	1
2	The Early Campaign I: establishing an organisation; tensions, roles and remits.	17
3	The Early Campaign II: a developing process; enter the advisers; moving into the doldrums.	41
4	The Early Campaign III: in the doldrums; negotiating changing roles; activity anew.	67
5	The Middle Campaign I: out of the doldrums; 'reprieves' and realism; crisis and resolution.	99
6	The Middle Campaign II: 'maximum resistance'; arming the nationals; a sense of direction.	125
	1 2 3 4 5	Corby and its steelworks; recent history. 2 The Early Campaign I: establishing an organisation; tensions, roles and remits. 3 The Early Campaign II: a developing process; enter the advisers; moving into the doldrums. 4 The Early Campaign III: in the doldrums; negotiating changing roles; activity anew. 5 The Middle Campaign I: out of the doldrums; 'reprieves' and realism; crisis and resolution. 6 The Middle Campaign II: 'maximum resistance'; arming the nationals;

7	The Middle Campaign III: a lobby in Blackpool; preparing a 'final' case; storms in the Clyde; a Big Day arrives.	151
8	The End Campaign I: criticisms revisited: a spark of light from Labour; in the shadow of another Big Day; the Second Big Day.	189
9	The End Campaign II: in national hands; an overdue debate; management take an initiative; hope replaces expectation.	223
10	The Campaign Ended: last days; post-mortems; review, lessons and beginnings.	255
REFERENCES		282