

Exploring Post-development

Theory and practice, problems and perspectives

Edited by Aram Ziai

 Routledge
Taylor & Francis Group
LONDON AND NEW YORK

EXPLORING POST-DEVELOPMENT
ARAM ZIAI
LONDON

Contents

Notes on contributors

viii

Acknowledgements

x

PART I

Introduction

1

1 Development discourse and its critics: an introduction to post-development

3

ARAM ZIAI

2 'Post-development' as concept and social practice

18

ARTURO ESCOBAR

PART II

Theory

33

3 Development: the devil we know?

35

KNUT G. NUSTAD

4 Post-development and the discourse–agency interface

47

JON HARALD SANDE LIE

5 On the singular name of post-development: Serge Latouche's Destruktion of development and the possibility of emancipation

63

YOSHIHIRO NAKANO

PART III
Problems	81
6 Pacific indigenous development and post-intentional realities	83
SUSAN MAIAVA AND TREVOR KING
7 Post-development and further: difference from ‘inside’ and autonomy	99
LUCIOLE SAUVIAT
8 The ambivalence of post-development: between reactionary populism and radical democracy	111
ARAM ZIAI
PART IV
Practice	129
9 What, then, should we do? Insights and experiences of a Senegalese NGO	131
SALLY MATTHEWS
10 Surplus possibilities: post-development and community economies	145
J. K. GIBSON-GRAHAM
11 Plachimada resistance: a post-development social movement metaphor?	163
K. RAVI RAMAN
12 Comida: a narrative mirror for the universal concept of nutrition	181
MARTINA KALLER-DIETRICH
PART V
Perspectives	195
13 Post-development: unveiling clues for a possible future	197
ANA AGOSTINO

14 Development, internationalism and social movements: a view from the North	212
FRIEDERIKE HABERMANN AND ARAM ZIAI
15 Concluding the exploration: post-development reconsidered	226
ARAM ZIAI
Index	235