CONTENTS

Preface .....	ix
Part One. Collective and Distributive Readings: History and Range of Possible Analyses .....	1
Introduction to Part One: An Apparent Difference Between Two Types of Conjunction .....	2
Chapter 1: Logical Form .....	4
1.1. Two Notions of Logical Form .....	4
1.2. Two Notions of Compositionality .....	5
1.3. Compositionality and Logical Form .....	7
1.4. Syntactic Motivation for LF .....	10
Notes .....	11
Chapter 2: The NP/S Analysis .....	12
2.1. Historical Notes on the NP/S Analysis .....	12
2.2. Conjunction Reduction .....	17
2.3. The NP/S Analysis: Formal Presentation .....	20
Notes .....	24
Chapter 3: The Relational/S Analysis .....	26
Notes .....	32
Chapter 4: The S/S Analysis .....	33
4.1. Historical Notes on the S/S Analysis .....	33
4.2. "Official Version" and Critique of the S/S Analysis .....	50
Notes .....	51
Chapter 5: Two Types of NP/NP Analysis .....	55
5.1. Primitive Phrasal and Generalized Conjunction .....	55
5.2. Conjoined Noun Phrases and Plural Noun Phrases .....	64
Notes .....	68

Chapter 6: Interlude On Collective Action and Colors . . .	69
Notes . . . . .	80
Chapter 7: Locating the Ambiguity . . . . .	81
7.1. The Group-Level Analysis of Distributivity . .	83
7.2. Testing for Ambiguity . . . . .	89
7.3. First Problem for Noun Phrase Ambiguity Accounts: Failure of the Zeugma Test . . .	96
7.4. Second Problem for Noun Phrase Ambiguity Accounts: Partial Distributivity and Par- ticipatory Distributivity . . . . .	104
7.5. Third Problem for Noun Phrase Ambiguity Accounts: Verb Agreement . . . . .	109
7.6. Problems with Mode-of-Composition Ana- lyses . . . . .	114
7.7. Problems with Scope Ambiguity Analyses . .	116
7.8. Conclusion . . . . .	124
Notes . . . . .	124
Chapter 8: How Many Readings? . . . . .	128
8.1. Just One . . . . .	128
8.2. Arbitrarily Many . . . . .	132
8.3. Two . . . . .	141
Notes . . . . .	144
Chapter 9: On The Structure of Groups . . . . .	145
9.1. Sets and Groups, Union and Pairing . . . . .	146
9.2. Conjunctions of Singulars . . . . .	147
9.3. The Sets Theory and the Union Theory Point to Different Ontologies . . . . .	148
9.4. The Argument from 'Both' . . . . .	150
9.5. The Argument from Reciprocals . . . . .	151
9.6. The Argument from Distributives . . . . .	153
9.7. The Argument from 'Same' and 'Different' . .	155
9.8. First Response to the Arguments: Pure and Impure Atoms . . . . .	156
9.9. Second Response to the Arguments: Covers .	159
9.10. Conclusion . . . . .	167
Notes . . . . .	167

Chapter 10: The Event-Free Fragment . . . . .	169
10.1. Basic Claims . . . . .	169
10.2. Syntax . . . . .	170
10.3. Semantics . . . . .	172
Notes . . . . .	177
Part Two. Events in the Semantics of Plurality and Conjunction . . . . .	179
Introduction to Part Two: Extending the Coverage . . . . .	180
Chapter 11: Earlier Work on Collectivizing Adverbials . . . . .	182
11.1. A Problem in Distinguishing Collective and Distributive Predicates . . . . .	182
11.2. An Analysis Based on the Scope of an Event Quantifier . . . . .	185
11.3. An Analysis Based on Event Mereology . . . . .	189
11.4. Spatial and Temporal Readings . . . . .	200
11.5. An Analysis Based on Predicate Negation . . . . .	205
Notes . . . . .	214
Chapter 12: Return to an Event-Based Analysis . . . . .	218
12.1. Getting Clear about the Problem . . . . .	218
12.2. Analyzing 'Together' in Terms of Overlap . . . . .	222
12.3. Persistence and Quantification . . . . .	226
12.4. Adverbial and Adjectival 'Together' . . . . .	231
Notes . . . . .	237
Chapter 13: Pluractional Markers . . . . .	238
13.1. Introduction . . . . .	238
13.2. More than Just Groups of Events . . . . .	241
13.3. Parameters of Pluractionality . . . . .	242
13.4. Skeleton of an Analysis . . . . .	251
13.5. Pluractionality in Klamath . . . . .	257
Notes . . . . .	264
Chapter 14: Unifying the Semantics of Conjunction . . . . .	267
14.1. Groups of Events . . . . .	267
14.2. A Problem with Temporal Alternation . . . . .	268
14.3. Alternation and Groups of Events . . . . .	272

14.4. Conjunction and Groups of Events . . . . .	277
14.5. Color and Material Conjunction . . . . .	281
Notes . . . . .	286
Conclusion . . . . .	287
References . . . . .	290
