

CONTINENTAL TRADING BLOCS

The Growth of Regionalism in the World Economy

Edited by

Richard Gibb

Department of Geographical Sciences
University of Plymouth, UK

Wieslaw Michalak

School of Applied Geography
Ryerson Polytechnic University, Toronto, Canada

JOHN WILEY & SONS

Chichester • New York • Brisbane • Toronto • Singapore

Contents

List of figures	ix
List of tables	x
Notes on contributors	xi
Preface	xv
List of acronyms	xvii
1 Regionalism in the world economy
Richard Gibb	1
The historical perspective	2
The challenge of free trade	4
The General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade	7
The GATT trading system	10
The GATT's influence on regional trading arrangements	15
Failings in the GATT	18
Different forms of regionalism: from sectoral agreements to political-economic unions	22
The economic merits of regionalism	28
Conclusions	32
2 The political economy of trading blocs
Wieslaw Michalak	37
Introduction	37
Social theory, industrial change and regionalism	39
Multinational enterprises and national regulatory policies	52
Managed trade and the new trade theory	61
Conclusions	64
3 The European Community
Mark Wise	75
Introduction	75
Federalists, functionalists, nationalists and 'spillover theory'	76
Free trade and common market protectionism	77
Supranational, international and intergovernmental institutions	78
Conflicting ideas	79
The EC and world trade	82
Towards '1992' and deeper economic, social and political integration	92
Towards greater union, disintegration or a variable geometry Europe?	99
Conclusions	105

vi Contents

4 Regional integration in eastern Europe
Wieslaw Michalak	111
The Council for Mutual Economic Assistance	112
'Small integration' in eastern Europe	118
'Large integration' and EC membership	124
Conclusions	128
5 The Commonwealth of Independent States
Michael Bradshaw	135
Introduction	135
Soviet economic space	137
Economic relations between the republics	142
The collapse of Soviet economic space	149
Trade friction between the republics	150
The collapse of the Ruble zone	151
Russia's energy crisis	155
Conclusions: prospects for reintegration	157
6 The North American Free Trade Area: an overview of issues and prospects
James McConnell and Alan MacPherson	163
Introduction	163
Movements toward closer integration	164
Factors favouring the creation of a trilateral trade agreement	166
Resistance to NAFTA	171
Factors likely to influence the probability that NAFTA will emerge	180
Conclusions	185
7 Regional integration in Latin America: the revival of a concept?
Robert Gwynne	189
Historical background	190
Import substitution and economic integration	192
The debt crisis and multilateralism	197
Latin American economic integration with the United States	199
Regional integration schemes: signs of revival?	201
Conclusions	204
8 Regional economic integration in post-apartheid southern Africa
Richard Gibb	209
Colonialism, capitalism and apartheid destabilisation: creating a legacy of 'dependence'	211

Trading transactions	216
The traditional approach to regional integration	218
Strategies for equilibrium	221
In conclusion	226
9 The West Pacific Rim
Rupert Hodder	231
Regionalism in the West Pacific Rim	231
Characteristics of international trade	233
Problems and opportunities in the subregions	237
Regionalism and security	245
Future cooperation and integration	246
Conclusion	247
10 Conclusion: regionalism in perspective
Richard Gibb and Wieslaw Michalak	251
Trading blocs in the 1990s and beyond: key themes and agendas	254
Bibliography	259
Index	277