
BARBARIANS AND POLITICS AT THE
COURT OF ARCADIUS

ALAN CAMERON
JACQUELINE LONG
WITH A CONTRIBUTION BY LEE SHERRY

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA PRESS
Berkeley • Los Angeles • Oxford

CONTENTS

Preface	ix
Chronological Table	xi
1 • Introduction	1
2 • Synesius of Cyrene	13
I. Family	13
II. Conversion?	19
III. Baptism	28
IV. Orthodoxy	35
V. Hypatia	39
VI. The Dion	62
3 • Synesius in Constantinople	71
I. The Panhellenion	71
II. Paeonius	84
III. The Date of the Embassy	91
4 • De regno	103
I. Summary	103
II. The Date of the Speech	107
III. The Antibarbarian Tirade	109
IV. Aurelian and the Barbarians	121
V. Publication	127
VI. Synesius's Audience	134

5 • De providentia and the Ministers of Arcadius	143
I. Introduction	143
II. Summary	144
III. Collegiate Prefectures	149
IV. Aurelian's Consulate	161
V. Typhos	175
VI. The Restoration of Osiris	182
VII. The Fall of Typhos	191
6 • De providentia and the Barbarians	199
I. The Massacre	199
II. Gaïnas and Tribigild	223
III. Aurelian's Return	233
IV. Fravitta	236
7 • Literary Sources of De providentia	253
I. Introduction	253
II. Egyptian Sources	254
III. Dio Chrysostom	265
IV. Panegyric and Invective	271
V. Neoplatonic Themes	281
VI. Oracles and Apocalypse	290
8 • Barbarians and Politics	301
I. Greeks and Romans	301
II. Political Exploitation of the Myth	311
III. Caesarius and the Exculpation of Gaïnas	316
IV. Anti-Germanism in Action	323
V. Conclusions	333
9 • Translation of De providentia	337
Appendix I: Aurelian and Pulcheria	399
Appendix II: Chrysostom's Movements in 400–402	405
Appendix III: Synesius's Visit to Athens	409
Bibliography	413
Index	433