

The Role of Banks in Economic Development

The Economics of Industrial Resurgence

George T. Edwards

Foreword by Harold Lever

M
MACMILLAN
PRESS

Contents

List of Tables	vii
List of Figures	ix
Acknowledgements	x
Foreword by Harold Lever	xi
1 Introduction, Purpose and Summary of this Book	1
1.1 Introduction	1
1.2 Purpose of this book	2
1.3 A summary of the argument	3
1.4 Limitations	11
2 A Review of Some Foundation Reading for the New Economics	12
2.1 Introduction and purpose	12
2.2 John Maynard Keynes: 'A Programme of Expansion' (April 1929)	15
2.3 Ben R. Cant: 'Britain's Economic Problems in International Historical Perspective' (1972)	20
2.4 Professor Glyn Davies: 'Gearing Increased Savings to Greater Industrial Investment: Institutions, Instruments and Attitudes' (1977)	30
2.5 Dr Yao-Su Hu: 'National Attitudes and the Financing of Industry' (1975)	38
2.6 Michael Madden: 'A Preferential Financing System for UK Industry' (1977)	48
2.7 Will Hutton: 'The Decline of BL' (1986)	54
2.8 Conclusions	59
3 Extended Outline of the New Economics of Investment Credit	62
3.1 Business confidence, liquidity and the demand for funds	62
3.2 The interaction between loan terms and project profitability	66
3.3 Virtuous and vicious economic cycles	76
3.4 A brief statement of the ideas, basic principles and procedures of investment-credit economics	81

4	Procedures for Producing Economic Resurgence	91
4.1	Introduction	91
4.2	How French bank nationalisation produced economic resurgence	92
4.3	How private bank–industry German planning produced productive industry	97
4.4	How Japan breeds champions	100
4.5	How faint hearts and weak heads produce continual British economic decline	104
4.6	How America won the production war	110
4.7	Common factors in cases of economic resurgence	114
5	Some Criticisms of Investment Credit Economics	118
5.1	Introduction	118
5.2	Comments on ‘The Banks and Industry: some recent developments’, Banking Information Service Paper, July 1981	121
5.3	Comments on ‘Bank Lending and Industrial Investment: A Response to Recent Criticism’ by Dimitri Vittas and Roger Brown, Public Affairs Department of the Committee of London Clearing Banks, 1982	126
5.4	Comments on ‘The British Capital Market and the Economy’ by Professor Harold Rose, Economic Adviser, Barclays Bank, 1976	156
5.5	Brief comments on ‘Do We Invest Too Much?’ by Christopher Johnson, Economic Adviser, Lloyds Bank, 1980	165
5.6	Summary and conclusions	168
6	The Economic Failure of English-speaking Nations, the Prospects and the Real Solutions	174
6.1	Economic stupidity as a way of life	174
6.2	Prospects for future change	180
6.3	Real solutions to economic decline	183
6.4	The impeccable decline of Britain	190
	Appendix: An Essay on Socio-economic Dynamics	196
	Notes and References (including Appendices to Chapters 3 and 5)	207
	Index	218