

Chinese Working- Class Lives

GETTING BY IN TAIWAN

Hill Gates

Cornell University Press

Ithaca and London

Contents

Preface		vii
A Note on Chinese Romanizations		xi
1. Introduction		1
2. Fieldwork in Taiwan: Becoming a Little Chinese		5
First Encounters	6
Collecting Life Histories	10
“What Is an Anthropologist, Anyway?”	17
Fieldwork and Politics	23
Becoming a Little Chinese	24
3. An Island of Immigrants		26
Prehistoric and Aborigine Settlement	27
The Taiwanese: Pioneers from South China	32
The Japanese: Taiwan as a Sugar Colony, 1895–1945	39
The Coming of the Mainlanders, 1945	44
4. The Changing Political Economy under the Nationalists		50
Economic Development	50
Ethnicity and Social Class	54
Repression and Resistance	62
5. Working for a Living		68
Business and “Bitter Labor”	68
Guo A Gui: “People Have to Have Fun, Too!”	79
Lo A Lan: The One Who Was Sold	92
6. Home and Family		103
Zhang Xiuzhen: Immigrant Cook	118
Zhang Zhengming: Air Force Loyalist	131
7. Women and Men, Old and Young		145
Kang Weiguo: Old Bachelor Soldier	156
Ong Siukim: A Mother after All	164

Contents

8. Folk Religions, Old and New		175
Go Cala: Temple Master	184
Kho Teklun: Saved by the Buddha	193
9. Education, the Great Escape		205
Lim Fumiko: Japanese Girl, Chinese Woman	211
10. Conclusions		226
Source Materials on Taiwan		231
References		243
Index		251
Map of Taiwan and East China		28