

The Scar of Revolution

Custine, Tocqueville, and the
Romantic Imagination

Irena Grudzinska Gross

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA PRESS

Berkeley / Los Angeles / Oxford

Contents

PREFACE	ix
---------	----

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	xv
-----------------	----

Introduction: Two Frenchmen	1
-----------------------------	---

PART ONE: CUSTINE IN RUSSIA

1 La Russie en 1839	9
-------------------------------	---

2 The Romantic Self and Russia	12
-----------------------------------	----

Aloys	12
--------------	----

The French Revolution and the Understanding of Russia	15
--	----

Violence in Russia	18
--------------------	----

3 Russian History: The Tangled Tradition	24
---	----

Herberstein	24
-------------	----

Karamzin	33
----------	----

4
The (Double) Nature of Russia	41
The Western View	41
The Russian View	49
Grattez le Russe . . .	53
A Postscript: The East-West Divide	60
5
Self-Assertion and the Nature of Others	63
6
Mental Geography	78
Siberia	78
The Cities	86
Conclusions: In-between	91
PART TWO: TOCQUEVILLE IN AMERICA
7
Democracy in America	97
8
Journey to Lake Oneida	102
The Empty Place	102
A Tangled Story	110
Travel Diary and Letter	115
9
A Seated Man	121
Beaumont's Frenchman	121
A Seated Man	129
The Seated Man and His Politics	134
Paradise	141
10
Social America	146
The America of Many Oneidas	146
The Discovery of America	152
Tocqueville's America	156

	11
Conclusions		161
	America, Russia, and Freedom	161
	Custine, Tocqueville, and René	166
	BIBLIOGRAPHY	169
	INDEX	177