

Sandra M. Gilbert

On Burning Ground

THIRTY YEARS OF THINKING
ABOUT POETRY

THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN PRESS

Ann Arbor

Contents

Regrets, Rewards, and What Ifs . . .
Musing on Hypotheticals	ix

I. Confessional Poetics: Meditations and Memories

Why Do We Write: Some Thoughts on the Coin That Sings	3
Of the Living Dead: The Poet-Critic in an Age of Theory	8
Confessional Mythology	14
A Ruthlessness of One's Own	22
Glass Joints: A Meditation on the Line	28
Mysteries of the Hyphen: Poetry, Pasta, and Identity Politics	38
Westward, Off the Map	51
Staging Grief: Two Elegies	56
All About My Mother (and Me)	61

II. Figures in a Landscape: Readings, Profiles, and Reviews

The Rediscovery of H. D.	69
Mephistopheles in Maine: Rereading Lowell's "Skunk Hour"	75
Looking for Mr. Death: On Sexton's The Death Notebooks	85
Of Metaphors and Morals: On Three Visions of Sylvia Plath	90

Extraordinary Words: On Ruth Stone's Ordinary Words	99
The Lamentations of the New: On Louise Glück's Vita Nova	106
The Last Wilderness of the Wild Old: On Marie Ponsot's The Bird Catcher and Rajzel Zychlinsky's God Hid His Face	110
III. On Burning Ground: Review-Essays
On the Edge of the Estate	121
How These New Homegirls Sing	128
The Worst of the Best; or, "Pessoa, Schmessoa"	141
Where the Boys Are	157
Common Wealth	170
Acknowledgments	179