

SEA CHANGE

PACIFIC ASIA AS THE NEW WORLD INDUSTRIAL CENTER

James C. Abegglen

THE FREE PRESS

A Division of Macmillan, Inc.

NEW YORK

Maxwell Macmillan Canada

TORONTO

Maxwell Macmillan International

NEW YORK OXFORD SINGAPORE SYDNEY

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments xiii

Chapter 1 • Sea Change 1

Potential for Continued Success	2
Keys to Growth: Investment in Infrastructure	7
Keys to Growth: Savings	8
Keys to Growth: Recycling Japan's Surpluses	9
Keys to Growth: Foreign Investment and Aid	12
Keys to Growth: Export Promotion	13
East Asia Independent from Western Economies	15
Urban Centers as Key Economic Centers	17
Japan's Role in East Asia	19
New Regional Economic Zones	20

Chapter 2 • Ensuring Competitive Success: Corporate Strategies in East Asia 23

Is Failure in Japan to Be Repeated in the Rest of East Asia?	24
East Asia as a Production Platform	25
Nike	26
Mabuchi Motors	28
Uniden Corp.	29
Targeting East Asian Sales	30
East Asia's Auto Markets	32
Where Are the Americans?	33

East Asian Dominance in Electronics Production	36
Japanese Companies' Offshore Bases	38
American Electronics Producers	40
IBM—An Early Player in Japan	40
Apple's Pacific Sales Growing	41
Texas Instruments' Comeback in Asia	42
AT&T—A Newcomer	43
Japan as the Springboard into East Asia	44
Opportunities in Chemicals	46
Kodak's Issues in East Asia	47
Western Strategies for East Asia	48
Meeting the Challenges of the East Asian Market	51

Chapter 3 • Japan in Asia 57

Japan Transfers Industries to East Asia	60
Shifting Balances of Power	62
Japan's Focus on East Asian Investment Opportunities	64
Foreign Aid Patterns	66
Political Shift Toward Asia	68
Japan's Image in East Asia	69
Economic Success, the Key to Power	73
The U.S. as a Balance to Japan	75
Japan as an International Leader	77
Stability, a Japanese Priority	79

Chapter 4 • Asia's New Economies: The China Factor 81

Hong Kong Absorbs Guangdong	84
Manufacturing Moves into Guangdong	85
Deng's Reforms	87
The Fujian-Taiwan Link	88
KMT Reluctance to Trade	89
A Massive South China Economy?	91

Economics First, Politics After	94
Ties Between Japan and Liaoning	96
The Growth Triangle as a Singapore Solution	98
The Back of the Beyond	99
China's Realistic Prospects	100
Foreign Investment Essential	103
Trade and Continued Reform	104
The Case Against Optimism	106
Positioning the Western Company in China	•107

Chapter 5 • Taiwan and Korea: New Dimensions, New Directions 109

Historical Patterns of Development	111
Activist Governments	113
Divergent Economic Structures	114
Taiwanese Outward Investment	116
"China Fever"	117
Dramatic Postwar Growth in Korea	120
The Chaebol as Engines of Growth	122
Brakes on Development	124
Northeast Asia as an Economic Center	127

Chapter 6 • The Challenge of Southeast Asia 131

The Move to a Regional Economic Group	133
Growth, a Recent Phenomenon	136
Factors in Growth: Trade	137
Factors in Growth: Foreign Investment	138
Factors in Growth: Savings	140
Singapore: The Entrepôt	142
The Philippines: The Poor Man in Asia	145
Industrial Newcomers: Malaysia and Thailand	146
Malaysia Incorporated	148
Thailand's Noninterventionist Government	151
Breaking Down Trade Barriers	153

Chapter 7 • Indonesia and Vietnam: Southeast Asia's Frontiers 155

Indonesia at the Starting Gate	157
Initial Social and Economic Successes	158
The Primary Sector Gives Way to Manufacturing	159
A New Nation, Politically Vulnerable	161
Overseas Chinese and Sons of the Soil	163
Japan, An Essential Partner in Indonesia's Growth	165
Foreign Direct Investment	167
Western Apathy Ignores Opportunities	169
Destabilizing Factors	170
Rebuilding Vietnam	171
Lessons from History	173
Vietnam's Assets	175
Infrastructure and Government Bottlenecks	177
North versus South	178
Foreign Investment on the Increase	180

Chapter 8 • Networks, Groups, and Growth 185

The Economic Strength of the Overseas Chinese	187
The Traveling Families: Why Are They Successful?	191
Evolution from Family-Held Businesses	194
Political Vulnerability and Assimilation	199
The Overseas Chinese as Partners	200
Groups in Japan and Korea	203
A Stage in Economic Development	204

Chapter 9 • Japan's Kaisha in East Asia 209

The Effects of Yen Revaluation	210
Investment Patterns in East Asia	212
The Textile and Clothing Industry	214
Toray	215
Asahi Chemical Industry Co.	216
The Auto Industry	217

Honda	218
The Electronics Industry	220
Matsushita Electric Industries	221
NEC	223
Hitachi	224
Consumables	225
Services	227
Financial Services	228
Retailing	229
Trading Companies	231
Performance and Prospects	233

Chapter 10 • After the Sea Change 241

A World of Regional Trading Blocs	245
Political Risks for East Asia	246
Military Building as a Hazard	248
Potential for Even Greater Growth	249
Japan as a Regional Player	250
Implications for the United States	252
U.S.-Japan Cooperation in the Region	253

Appendix 257

Notes 267

Index 278