

CHINA TRANSFORMED

---

Historical Change and the Limits of European Experience

R. BIN WONG

Cornell University Press
Ithaca and London

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction: Beyond European Models of Historical Change 1

Comparing Patterns of Historical Change 1

One Thousand Years of Chinese History and Western Social Theory 4

A Disclaimer and a Defense 7

Part I Economic History and the Problem of Development 9

1 Economic Change in Late Imperial China and Early Modern Europe 13

The Problem of Economic Change in Chinese History 14

Early Modern European Dynamics of Growth 16

Smithian Dynamics in China 17

Population Dynamics: Birth and Death Rates 22

Economic Dynamics and Preconditions of Capitalism 27

Conclusion 31

2 Dynamics of Industrial Expansion in Early Modern Europe and Late Imperial China 33

Rural Industry and Demographic Change in Europe 34

Rural Industry and Demographic Change in China 37

From Proto-Industrialization to Industrialization 38

Proto-Industrialization, Social Mobility, and Economic Change 43

3 Making Modern Economies 53

Logics of Technological Change: Contingent Possibilities 53

Sources of Economic Growth and China's

Prewar Industrialization 58

Smithian and Malthusian Dynamics in China's

Agrarian Economy 62

Perspectives on Development in China since 1949 67

Part II State Formation and Transformation in Eurasia 71

- 4 Chinese and European Perspectives on State Formation and Transformation 73
- State Formation: Expectations and Perspectives 74
- The Formation of Early Empires and Their Legacies 75
- A Eurasian Perspective on Modern State Making 79
- The Formation of European States 83
- The Reproduction and Elaboration of the Chinese State 88
- Chinese State Making in European Perspective 93
- A Chinese Perspective on European State Making 95
- Trajectories of Political Change 101
- 5 Constructing Domestic Order 105
- Social and Political Order in Europe and China 105
- Domestic Order in Europe and China 108
- Institutional Bases for Social Order 113
- The Legacy of the Search for Material and Moral Control 116
- An Agrarian Empire's Decline into Modernity 122
- 6 Political Economies in Europe and China 127
- Raising Revenues: Common Challenges, Different Capacities 129
- Chinese Political Economy in the Late Imperial Period 135
- European Political Economies: From "Just" Prices to Just Prices 139
- Comparing Chinese and European Political Economies 142
- Industrialization in Capitalist and Agrarian Economies 149
- 7 The Chinese State after 1850 153
- State Making in Nineteenth-Century China 154
- Chinese Trajectories of State Making in the Twentieth Century 158
- State (Re)building and Nationalism in Twentieth-Century China 166
- 8 China after 1949 179
- State-Economy Relations 181
- State-Bureaucracy Relations 190
- State and Ideology 194
- The Persistence of the Chinese State 198
- History and Theory 202

Part III Politics, Protest, and Social Change 207

- 9 Grain Seizures and Political Economy 209
- Chinese Grain Seizures 211
  - European Grain Seizures 216
  - Grain Seizures: A Comparison 222
  - Implications 227
- 10 State Making, Fiscal Negotiations, and Tax Resistance 231
- Tax Resistance in Europe 231
  - Tax Resistance in China 235
  - Tax Resistance in the Mid-Nineteenth Century 238
  - Nineteenth-Century Tax Resistance in Late Imperial Perspective 244
  - Revolution, State Making, and Political Change 246
  - Chinese and European Experiences of Tax Resistance 248
- 11 Revolutions 253
- State Crisis and State Making 254
  - The Chinese Revolution in French Perspective 259
  - The French Revolution in Chinese Perspective 261
  - France: A Continuing Revolution of Interpretation 264
  - China: A Continuing Revolution 267
  - Revolution and Modernization 271
- 12 Comparative History and Social Theory 277
- Economic Change 278
  - State Making and Unmaking 281
  - Social Protest and Political Change 284
  - Combining Comparisons and Connections 287
  - Types of Historical Analyses 288
  - Becoming Modern 291
- References 295
- Index 321