

Helmut Spitzer
Zena Mnasi Mabeyo

In Search of Protection

Older People and their Fight for Survival
in Tanzania

With a foreword by Leopold Rosenmayr

!

!

Klagenfurt/Celovec – Dar es Salaam

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements	7
Foreword by Leopold Rosenmayr:
Personal experiences in a changing continent	11
1. Introduction	17
2. Older people in Tanzania: An overview	25
Concepts of old age and the elderly	25
The demographic picture	32
Structural change, poverty and old age	38
3. Older people on the political agenda:
Global, regional and national policies	43
International policies and programs referring to older people	43
Regional initiatives, policy frameworks and the need for research	47
Towards an agenda for older people in Tanzania	51
4. Social protection: Concepts and policies	57
An issue of controversy: The struggle for a viable definition	57
Social protection in Africa:
The "Livingstone Call for Action" and beyond	64
Social protection for older people in Tanzania:
Tangible reality or distant dream?	67

5. In search of protection:
Evidence from a field-based research	77
Background, methodology and ethics of the study	77
Demographic characteristics of the study population and their linkage to social protection	84
Educational status, formal employment and social protection in old age	88
Coping mechanisms and survival strategies	92
Poor living conditions	96
The struggle for water	98
Limited access to free medical services	101
The burden of HIV/AIDS	103
Informal social protection provided by the family system	105
Community-based support	109
Lack of government and donor support	111
Awareness of rights, entitlements and policies	113
Marginalization, discrimination and social exclusion	116
From empirical research to practical intervention: Report on a goat loan project	119
6. Social pensions – a way forward?	125
Bibliography	131
Abbreviations	139
About the authors	140