

SUB Hamburg

A/595456

Body of Victim, Body of Warrior

REFUGEE FAMILIES AND THE MAKING OF
KASHMIRI JIHADISTS

Cabeiri deBergh Robinson

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA PRESS
BERKELEY LOS ANGELES LONDON

CONTENTS

- List of Illustrations vii
List of Abbreviations ix
Note on Names, Transliteration, and Photographs xi
Preface: The Kashmir Dispute and the Conflicts
Within Conflict Ethnography xiii
Acknowledgments xxiii
Introduction: The Social Production of Jihād 1

PART ONE BETWEEN HIJARAT AND JIHĀD IN AZAD KASHMIR

- 1 • Between War and Refuge in Jammu and Kashmir: Displacement, Borders, and the Boundaries of Political Belonging 31
- 2 • Protective Migration and Armed Struggle: Political Violence and the Limits of Victimization in Islam 67

PART TWO THE HISTORICAL EMERGENCE OF KASHMIRI REFUGEES AS POLITICAL SUBJECTS

- 3 • Forging Political Identities, 1947–1988: The South Asian Refugee Regime and Refugee Resettlement Villages 99
- 4 • Transforming Political Identities, 1989–2001: Refugee Camps in Azad Jammu and Kashmir and the International Refugee Regime 137

PART THREE
BODY OF VICTIM, BODY OF WARRIOR

- 5 • Human Rights and Jihād: Victimization and the Sovereignty of the Body 171
- 6 • The Mujāhid as Family-Man: Sex, Death,
and the Warrior's (Im)pure Body 201
- Conclusion: From Muhājir to Mujāhid to Jihādi
in the Global Order of Things 229
- Postscript: And, "Humanitarian Jihād" 237

- Notes 243
Glossary 275
Bibliography 277
Index 311