

SUB Hamburg

B/123623

---

Place-making and Policies for Competitive Cities

---

Edited by

Sako Musterd

Centre for Urban Studies
University of Amsterdam
The Netherlands

Zoltán Kovács

Institute of Geography
Hungarian Academy of Sciences
Budapest
Hungary

 WILEY-BLACKWELL

A John Wiley & Sons, Ltd., Publication

Contents

Contributors	xi
Foreword by Professor Allen J. Scott, University of California – Los Angeles	xv
Preface	xvii
PART I INTRODUCTION	1
1 Policies and Place-making for Competitive Cities	3
Sako Musterd and Zoltán Kovács
Policy progress	3
Economic sectors	7
Questions and approaches	8
References	10
2 Prevailing Policies versus New Tailored Policies	11
Sako Musterd and Zoltán Kovács
Introduction	11
Infrastructure, communication, tax and cluster policies	14
Creative class debates and policy hypes related to technology, tolerance and talent (3Ts)	16
New tailored policies linked to pathways, place and personal networks (3Ps)	18
Three parts	19
References	22
PART II PATHWAYS	25
3 Policies Built upon Pathways	27
Sako Musterd and Zoltán Kovács
Pathways and urban development	27
Capitalising on layers of development	30
Power centres with sustained positions	31
Post-socialist policies and the struggle with the past	32
References	33
4 Policies towards Multi-Layered Cities and Cluster Development	35
Tamás Egedy, Anne von Streit and Marco Bontje
Introduction	35
Multi-layered cities	37
Path dependence of cluster development and the role of policies	39
Multi-layered cities in Western Europe and in Eastern and Central Europe	43
Conclusions	54
References	55

5 Capitalising on Position: Policies for Competitive Capital and non-Capital Cities	59
Julie Brown, Declan Redmond and Marc Pradel i Miquel
Introduction	60
The function of capital versus non-capital cities	61
Selected capital and non-capital cities in the ACRE study	63
Capital cities: development pathways and policies	64
Development pathways of non-capital cities	67
Policies for competitive non-capital cities	69
Conclusions	72
References	74
6 Addressing the Legacy of Post-Socialist Cities in East Central Europe	77
Tadeusz Strykiewicz, Olga Gritsai, Evgenii Dainov and Tamás Egedy
Introduction	78
Key features of post-socialist cities affecting urban policies	79
The role and structure of the creative and knowledge-intensive sectors	81
Challenges and policy responses	84
Policy recommendations	90
Concluding remarks	92
References	93
PART III PLACE	95
7 The Importance of Places and Place Branding	97
Zoltán Kovács and Sako Musterd
Introduction	97
Sense of place and placelessness	98
Place-making, place marketing and place branding	100
Shifting focus of place-making in competitive cities	101
References	103
8 Policies towards Place Attraction and Policies for Place Retention	105
Philip Lawton, Michał Męczyński and Austin Barber
Introduction: place-making and the creative knowledge economy	106
The evolution of 'place-making'	107
Developing policies oriented towards the retention of creative and knowledge workers	114
Policy reorientation: a focus on place retention	115
Conclusion: place-making policy formation	122
References	123

9	Urban Regeneration and Housing as Potential Tools for Enhancing the Creative Economy	127
	Tamás Egedy, Declan Redmond and Kornelia Ehrlich
	Introduction	128
	Links between urban regeneration and the creative economy	129
	Housing for everyone and housing for creative people	132
	How can regeneration and housing support the creative economy?	135
	Conclusions	144
	References	145
10	Successes and Failures in City Branding Policies	149
	Montserrat Pareja-Eastaway, Caroline Chapain and Silvia Mugnano
	Introduction	149
	Theories on place branding: the role played by cultural and creative industries	152
	Some empirical evidence	154
	Conclusions: evaluating city branding processes	166
	Acknowledgements	169
	References	169
11	Policies for Small and Large Cities	173
	Marc Pradel i Miquel, Anders Paalzow and H�el�ene Martin-Brelot
	Introduction	173
	City size and the creative knowledge economy	174
	Does size influence the decisions of skilled employees in the creative and knowledge economy?	178
	City size, governance and policy-making	183
	Conclusion: different dimensions, different challenges	186
	References	189
12	Creative Knowledge Strategies for Polycentric City-Regions	191
	Marco Bontje and Kaisa Kepsu
	Introduction	191
	The city-region concept	193
	From mono- to polycentric city-regions	195
	Geographies of creative knowledge companies	197
	Geographies of creative knowledge workers	200
	Towards competitive creative knowledge regions? Examples of city-regional collaboration	202
	Conclusions and policy implications: the added value of city-regional collaboration	205
	References	206

PART IV PERSONAL NETWORKS	209
13 Personal Networks	211
Zoltán Kovács and Sako Musterd
The personal touch	211
From networks of firms to networks of people: the role of personal networks in the creative knowledge economy	212
Possible policy interventions focusing on personal networks	215
References	218
14 Networks and Mobility: the Policy Context	219
Olga Gritsai, Michel Grossetti and Denis Eckert
Introduction	219
The importance of personal trajectories and personal networks	222
Cultural and institutional constraints on mobility	227
Challenges for policy-makers	229
Conclusions	235
References	236
15 Internationalisation and Policies towards Transnational Migration	239
Heike Pethe and Sabine Hafner
Transnational migration of the highly skilled	239
Transnational migration of highly skilled professionals	241
Identifying and monitoring target groups for effective policies	243
Developing effective measures for highly skilled migrants – good practices	255
Conclusions	258
References	259
16 Policies Aimed at Strengthening Ties between Universities and Cities	263
Krzysztof Stachowiak, Rómulo Pinheiro, Carla Sadini and Mari Vaattovaara
Introduction	263
The changing nature of university–city relations	265
From university in , to the university of or for, the city : tensions and dilemmas in university–city relations	266
The university as an enabler of the creative economy	274
Case studies	277
Challenges and bottlenecks surrounding university–city relations	282
Conclusions	284
Acknowledgements	286
References	286

17 Governance of Creative Industries: the Role of Social and Professional Networks	293
Anne von Streit and Bastian Lange
Introduction	293
The creative industries: definitions and characteristics	295
Important strands of policies	297
Governance of the creative industries	299
Networks in the creative industries: theoretical approaches and empirical findings	302
Examples of promoting networks in the creative industries	304
Conclusions and suggestions	308
References	309
PART V CONCLUSIONS	313
18 Tailored – Context-Sensitive – Urban Policies for Creative Knowledge Cities	315
Sako Musterd and Zoltán Kovács
Three building blocks for new urban economic policies	315
New urban policies put in context: ‘PPP-CC-T’	318
Building on the past?	319
Tailored policies to create smart places	321
Policies building on personal networks	323
Conclusions	325
References	326
Index	329