

Linga-Bibliothek

Linga A/911956

Mining Memory

Reimagining Self and Nation through Narratives of Childhood in Peru

Mary Beth Tierney-Tello ✓

Lewisburg

BUCKNELL UNIVERSITY PRESS

(2017)

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Notes of Translation	xi
Introduction	xiii
Narrating the Child as National Subject	xv
Geographies of Childhood	xx
The Politics of Memory and Emotion	xxiii
1 On Writing a National Child: Migrant Subjectivity and the Heterogeneous Nation	1
The Indigenous Within: Los ríos profundos	6
The Other Side of Criollo Subjectivity: Un mundo para Julius	20
2 Childhood Homes and Foundational History: Local Identities in National and Global Landscapes	39
Local Agencies on the National Stage in De mi casona	45
From Local to Global in País de Jauja	56
3 The Child Between: Geographies of Childhood and the Role of Critical Memory	75
Remembering Childhood through Text and Image in Miguel Gutiérrez's La destrucción del reino	77
Narrative and Critical Memory in Ximena de dos caminos	96
4 Chronicles of Childhood: On the Politics of Nostalgia and Emotion	125
Remembering Home: A Return to the Subjective in Entre el amor y la furia (1997)	131
Nostalgic Affect and Countermemory in Más allá de la ventana	146

5	Other Children: Marginal Childhood, the Abject, and National Communities	161
	Snapshots of the Margins: “Los gallinazos sin plumas” and Caidos del cielo	165
	Death and Resistance from the Margins: Montacerdos	172
6	Dismembering Gendering: Performing Adolescence in Word and Image	187
	Dismembering and Remembering Pichula Cuéllar	191
	In and About Homosexuality in No se lo digas a nadie	211
	Conclusion. Childhood, Past and Future: New Feminine Political Agencies and Cultural Citizenship on Film	223
	Bibliography	241
	Index	255
	About the Author	269