

Privatizing China

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction: Privatizing China: Powers of the Self, Socialism from Afar Aihwa Ong and Li Zhang	1
PART I. POWERS OF PROPERTY	21
Emerging Class Practices	23
1. Private Homes, Distinct Lifestyles: Performing a New Middle Class Li Zhang	23
2. Property Rights and Homeowner Activism in New Neighborhoods Benjamin L. Read	41
Accumulating Land and Money	57
3. Socialist Land Masters: The Territorial Politics of Accumulation You-tien Hsing	57
4. Tax Tensions: Struggles over Income and Revenue Bei Li and Steven M. Sheffrin	71

Negotiating Neoliberal Values	87
5. "Reorganized Moralism": The Politics of Transnational Labor Codes Pun Ngai	87
6. Neoliberalism and Hmong/Miao Transnational Media Ventures Louisa Schein	103
PART II. POWERS OF THE SELF	121
Taking Care of One's Health	123
7. Consuming Medicine and Biotechnology in China Nancy N. Chen	123
8. Should I Quit? Tobacco, Fraught Identity, and the Risks of Governmentality Matthew Kohrman	133
9. Wild Consumption: Relocating Responsibilities in the Time of SARS Mei Zhan	151
Managing the Professional Self	168
10. Post-Mao Professionalism: Self-enterprise and Patriotism Lisa M. Hoffman	168
11. Self-fashioning Shanghainese: Dancing across Spheres of Value Aihwa Ong	182
Search for the Self in New Publics	197
12. Living Buddhas, Netizens, and the Price of Religious Freedom Dan Smyer Yü	197
13. Privatizing Control: Internet Cafés in China Zhou Yongming	214
Afterword: Thinking Outside the Leninist Corporate Box Ralph A. Litzinger	230
Notes	237
Contributors	271
Index	275