

Energy Policies and Multitopic Household Surveys

Guidelines for Questionnaire Design in Living Standards Measurement Studies

*Kyran O'Sullivan
Douglas F. Barnes*

ESMAP (Energy Sector Management Assistance Program)

THE WORLD BANK
Washington, D.C.

Contents

Foreword	v
Acknowledgments	vii
1. Introduction	1
Potential Value of LSMS Surveys for Analysis of Household Energy Use.....	2
Report Audience and Organization	2
2. Characteristics of LSMS Surveys and Specialized Household Energy Surveys ...	5
Characteristics of LSMS Surveys	6
Characteristics of Specialized Household Energy Surveys.....	6
Other Distinguishing Features of Both Types of Surveys	7
Existing and Missing Energy Questions in LSMS Surveys.....	9
Energy and Development Outcomes: The Issue of Causality	11
3. Importance of LSMS Survey Data for Energy Policy Analysis	15
Household Energy Transitions.....	15
Using LSMS Surveys for Energy Policy Analysis.....	19
Rural Electrification and Development.....	22
4. The Way Forward	27
Fuel Sources Module	28
Electricity Sources Modules (Grid and Off-grid)	33
Durable Goods (Light Bulbs and Appliances) Module	37
Electricity and Fuels in the Community Module	40
5. Conclusion	43
Appendix	45
References	49