

Making Global Self-Regulation Effective in Developing Countries

Edited by

Dana L. Brown and Ngaire Woods

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

List of Figures	vii
List of Tables	viii
List of Contributors	ix
Introduction	1
Dana L. Brown and Ngaire Woods
1. Making Corporate Self-Regulation Effective in Developing Countries	6
David Graham and Ngaire Woods
2. Do Voluntary Standards Work Among Governments? The Experience of International Financial Standards in East Asia	32
Andrew Walter
3. Do Voluntary Standards Work Among Corporations? The Experience of the Chemicals Industry	62
Michael Lenox
4. Making Disclosure Work Better: The Experience of Investor-Driven Environmental Disclosure	78
Robert Repetto
5. Bringing in Social Actors: Accountability and Regulation in the Global Textiles and Apparel Industry	113
Dara O'Rourke
6. Responsive Regulation and Developing Economies	149
John Braithwaite
7. Using International Institutions to Enhance Self-Regulation: The Case of Labor Rights in Cambodia	175
Sandra Polaski

Contents

8. Local Politics and the Regulation of Global Water Suppliers in South Africa Bronwen Morgan	201
9. Self-Regulation in a World of States Dana L. Brown	227
Index	260