

Cultural Economics and Theory

The evolutionary economics of
David Hamilton

David Hamilton, Glen Atkinson,
William M. Dugger, and
William T. Waller Jr.

Contents

Preface	x
Reflections from a student	xiv
Reflections from a colleague	xvi
 Introduction by David Hamilton	 1
 PART I
Economic thought and cultural economics	5
Economic thought
1 Veblen and Commons: a case of theoretical convergence	9
2 Hobson with a Keynesian twist	17
3 Keynes, cooperation, and economic stability	26
4 A theory of the social origins of the factors of production	37
 Cultural economics
5 Ceremonial aspects of corporate organization	46
6 The entrepreneur as a cultural hero	58
7 Why is institutional economics not institutional?	67
8 Drawing the poverty line at a cultural subsistence level	76
9 The great wheel of wealth: a reflection of social reciprocity	84

PART II

Structural policy and economic theory 93

Poverty

- 10 Reciprocity, productivity, and poverty 99
- 11 The political economy of poverty: institutional and technological dimensions 106
- 12 The U.S. economy: the disadvantages of having taken the lead 118
- 13 The myth is not the reality: income maintenance and welfare 129
- 14 The paper war on poverty 143
- 15 Welfare reform in the Reagan years: an institutionalist perspective 151

Consumption

- 16 What has evolutionary economics to contribute to consumption theory? 158
- 17 Institutional economics and consumption 167
- 18 Thorstein Veblen as the first professor of marketing science 187

Critique of orthodoxy

- 19 On staying for the canoe building, or why ideology is not enough 193
- 20 Ceremonialism as the dramatization of prosaic technology: who did invent the coup de poing? 201
- 21 Economics: science or legend? 208
- 22 The cure may be the cancer: remarks upon receipt of the Veblen–Commons Award 216

Elements of institutionalism

23	Is institutional economics really “root and branch” economics?	223
24	Rickshaws, treadmills, galley slaves, and Chernobyl	230
25	Technology and institutions are neither	236
	Index	243