

Downtown Ladies

*Informal Commercial Importers,
a Haitian Anthropologist, and Self-Making in Jamaica*

GINA A. ULYSSE

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS CHICAGO AND LONDON

Contents

Foreword by Catharine R. Stimpson	ix
Acknowledgments	xiii
Introduction. Toward a Reflexive Political Economy within a Political Economy of Reflexivity	I
CHAPTER 1. Of Ladies and Women: Historicizing Gendered Class and Color Codes	22
CHAPTER 2. From Higglering to Informal Commercial Importing	58
CHAPTER 3. Caribbean Alter(ed) natives : An Auto-Ethnographic Quilt	96
CHAPTER 4. Uptown Women/Downtown Ladies: Differences among ICIs	132
CHAPTER 5. Inside and Outside of the Arcade: My Downtown Dailies and Miss B.'s Tuffness	157
CHAPTER 6. Shopping in Miami: Globalization, Saturated Markets, and the Reflexive Political Economy of ICIs	192
CHAPTER 7. Style, Imported Blackness, and My Jelly Platform Shoes	219
Brawta. Written on Black Bodies: ICIs' Futures	251
Notes	257
Bibliography	283
Index	317