

Department of Economic and Social Information
Statistics Division

Geographical Information Systems
for Population Statistics

SUB Göttingen 7
209 927 526

United Nations • New York, 1997

Contents

	Page
Preface	v
1. Geographical information systems and population statistics	1
1.1. General requirements for the establishment of a GIS	2
1.2. Issues of integration and management	3
1.3. Institutional issues	5
1.4. References	5
2. National practices in the use of geographical information systems for population statistics	6
2.1. The 1993-1994 survey	7
2.2. Results of the survey	9
2.3. Concluding remarks	15
2.4. References	15
3. Assessment of GIS and desktop mapping software options for population and related statistics	16
3.1. GIS concepts	16
3.2. Review	20
3.3. Brief update	46
3.4. References	47
4. Applications of GIS for population analysis: A demonstration from Nepal	48
4.1. Visualisation of spatial data	48
4.2. Exploratory analysis	61
4.3. Modelling of spatial data	66
4.4. Conclusion	77
4.5. References	77
Annex 1. Results of the 1993-1994 survey on GIS and population statistics	80
Annex 2. Useful addresses	91