

Organizing scientific meetings

AUGUST EPPLÉ

*Professor of Pathology, Anatomy and Cell Biology
Thomas Jefferson University, Philadelphia*

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Preface	xiii
Acknowledgments	xiv
1 Introduction: what can go wrong?	1
2 The decision: to run or not to run	3
2.1 Are you sure?	3
2.1.1 Experience and commitment	3
2.1.2 Purpose and quality of the meeting	4
2.1.3 Responsibilities and rewards	4
2.2 Can you do it?	5
2.2.1 Money	5
2.2.2 Time	5
2.2.3 Local conditions and resources	6
2.2.4 Sponsorships	7
2.3 Should you do it?	7
3 Scientific and related events: variety delights	9
3.1 Scientific events	9
3.1.1 Lectures	9
3.1.1.1 Plenary or Main Lectures	10
3.1.1.2 Seminar-Style Lectures	11
3.1.1.3 State-of-the-Art Lectures	11
3.1.1.4 Short Communications	12
3.1.1.5 After-Dinner Talks	13
3.1.1.6 Closing Lectures	13
3.1.2 Poster Sessions	14
3.1.3 Colloquia and Round Table Conferences	17
3.1.4 Workshops	18
3.1.4.1 'Hands-On' Workshops	18
3.1.4.2 Discussion Workshops	19

3.1.4.3 Socratic Workshops	19
3.1.4.4 Open Workshops	23
3.1.5 Automated slide presentations, video tapes and films	23
3.1.6 Scientific and technological demonstrations	24
3.2 General and Business Sessions	25
3.3 Forums	26
3.4 Commercial exhibits	26
3.5 Disruptive demonstrations	27
4 Social events: something for every taste and budget	29
4.1 Scheduling and options	29
4.1.1 Minimeetings	29
4.1.2 Meetings of longer duration	29
4.2 Suggestions	31
4.2.1 The setting	31
4.2.2 Food	32
4.2.3 Beverages	32
4.2.4 Entertainment	33
4.2.5 Excursions	35
5 The program: how to accommodate pigs in a poke	37
5.1 Regional meetings	38
5.2 Small research conferences	38
5.3 Major meetings	39
5.4 Summary and recommendations	43
6 Selection of the meeting site: a touch of Russian roulette	44
6.1 General considerations	44
6.1.1 Proximity of meeting site and accommodation	45
6.1.2 Location and accessibility	46
6.1.3 Safety	47
6.1.4 Medical care	47
6.1.5 Baby sitting service	48
6.1.6 Advance payments	48
6.2 Selection of hotels and meeting facilities	48
6.2.1 Obvious criteria	48
6.2.1.1 Accommodation	48
6.2.1.2 Meeting rooms and equipment	49
6.2.1.3 Gastronomy	50
6.2.2 Subtle criteria	51
6.3 Special considerations at international meetings	52
6.3.1 The political situation	52
6.3.2 Immigration policies	52

6.3.3 Attitude towards foreigners	52
6.3.4 Financial stability	53
6.3.5 Strikes	53
7 The dates of the meeting: you can't win	54
8 Publications: cruel and unusual punishment	56
8.1 Weighing the pros and cons	56
8.2 Abstracts	57
8.3 Proceedings	59
8.3.1 Once more: should you really go ahead?	59
8.3.2 Deadlines and dead lines	60
8.3.3 Reviews: are they worth the pain?	62
8.3.4 Selection of coeditors	63
8.3.5 Selection of a publisher	63
8.3.6 Selection of contributors	66
8.4 Session reports and printed discussions	68
9 Selection of participants: how to lose old friends and make new enemies	70
9.1 General audience	70
9.2 Participants in key roles	71
9.2.1 Speakers	71
9.2.2 Colloquium moderators and panelists	72
9.2.3 Workshop leaders and participants	72
9.2.4 Forum moderators	73
9.2.5 Session chairs	73
9.3 Whom not to invite	74
10 Committees: you have to live with them	77
10.1 Mini-Machiavellian management	77
10.1.1 Making and breaking of committees	77
10.1.2 Mundus vult decipi	79
10.2 Standard committees	80
10.2.1 Organizing and program committees	80
10.2.2 Local committees	80
10.3 Other committees	81
11 Accompanists: you better love'm	83
12 Office and staff: don't take chances	86
13 The budget: a jungle with pitfalls	89
13.1 Initial consultations	89

13.2	Instant savings	89
13.3	Expenses	93
13.3.1	Expected expenses	93
13.3.2	Contingency funds	94
13.3.2.1	Before the meeting	94
13.3.2.2	During the meeting	95
13.3.2.3	After the meeting	95
13.3.3	Cost overrun	96
13.4	Initial budget estimate	97
13.5	Excess funds	98
14	Fund raising: some would rather see their dentist	99
14.1	Basic strategies	99
14.2	Preparation of formal applications	101
15	Allocation of travel support: not much fun either	104
15.1	Some food for thought	104
15.2	Support for participants from 'developing' countries	105
15.3	Setting priorities for support	106
16	Schedule of preparations: from dream to reality	109
16.1	Estimated time frames for preparations	109
16.2	Factors affecting the time frames	109
16.3	A stepwise approach for minor meetings	110
16.3.1	Informal research conferences	110
16.3.2	Regional research conferences and similar meetings	110
16.4	A stepwise approach to national or international major meetings	114
17	Announcements, programs, and related information: clarity pays	122
17.1	First announcement	122
17.2	Second announcement	125
17.2.1	Summary of deadlines	126
17.2.2	Mode of payment	126
17.2.3	Program information	127
17.2.4	Satellite meetings	129
17.2.5	Postsymposium excursions	130
17.2.6	Accompanists' program	131
17.2.7	Travel support	131
17.2.8	Travel discounts	131
17.2.9	General information	132
17.3	Final program	133
17.4	Abstract volume	138
17.5	List of exhibitors	139

18 Design of forms, nametags, tickets, signs and stickers: how about using common sense?	140
18.1 Forms	140
18.1.1 General layout	140
18.1.2 Potential problems at international meetings	141
18.2 Nametags	143
18.3 Tickets	144
18.4 Direction signs	144
18.5 Other signs	144
18.6 Stickers	145
19 Satellite meetings: think twice	146
20 Checklist of important no-nos	148
Appendix A Poster presentations	149
Appendix B Outline of a general schedule for an international meeting	151
Appendix C Excerpts from a letter to prospective panelists of a Colloquium	154
Appendix D Excerpts from a letter to the moderators of Colloquia	155
Appendix E Invitation to participate in a Socratic Workshop	156
Appendix F Excerpts from a letter to leaders of Socratic Workshops	157
Appendix G Example of a 'statement of research interests' for a Socratic Workshop	158
Appendix H Service contract with an exposition service	159
Appendix I Contract with a congress hotel	161
Appendix J Suggestions for the preparation of abstracts and abstract forms for scientific presentations	164
Appendix K Letter with clout to a manuscript delinquent	166
Appendix L Schedule for staff of an international meeting	167
Appendix M Checklist of equipment and supplies for the registration desk of a major meeting	171
Appendix N Equipment and supplies for meeting rooms	173
Appendix O Example of a letter/form confirming attendance of prospective participants in various events of a meeting	174
Appendix P Calculation of fees	175
Appendix Q Suggestions for a hotel reservation form	177
Appendix R Summary of daily program schedule	180
Index	181