

The Jews in the Soviet Union since 1917

Paradox of Survival

Volume II

Nora Levin

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY PRESS
New York and London

Contents

Volume II

24. Intensified Persecution: Anti-Semitism Becomes Official Policy, 1952–54 527
  25. The Heirs of Stalin, 1953–56: Restricted Thaw 551
  26. "We Have No Intention of Reviving a Dead Culture": Jewish Policy under Khrushchev in the 1950s 574
  27. The Literary "Thaw," 1956–62, and the First Jewish National Stirrings, 1958–63 599
  28. The Sixties: Renewed Attacks on Jews and Judaism and a Few Concessions 615
  29. The West, Dissidents, and the "Jews of Silence" Protest Soviet Repression, 1960–68 638
  30. The Jewish National Movement: Trials, Tests, and Affirmations, 1968–71 657
  31. The Jewish Emigration Movement and Western Support, 1971–76 691
  32. Jewish Emigration, 1976–84: Trials, Achievements, Doubts, and Dilemmas 730
  33. Permitted Margins of Jewish Life, 1970–85 757
  34. A People in Limbo: The Continuing Soviet Jewish Predicament 786
- Notes 817
- Glossary 985
- Index 991