

Perestroika

The Historical Perspective

Edited by Catherine Merridale
Research Fellow, King's College, Cambridge

and Chris Ward
Lecturer in the Department of Slavonic Studies, Cambridge

Edward Arnold

A division of Hodder & Stoughton
LONDON NEW YORK MELBOURNE AUCKLAND

Contents

Notes on Contributors	vii
Acknowledgements	xi
Introduction	xiii
Catherine Merridale and Chris Ward
I. POLITICS	1
1 Political Reform in Historical Perspective Stephen White	3
2 Perestroika and Political Pluralism: Past and Prospects Catherine Merridale	14
3 What Time is it in Russia's History? Robert C. Tucker	34
4 Reforming the party: Organisation and Structure 1917-1990 Francesco Benvenuti (translated by C. Woodhall and edited by C. Ward)	46
II. SOCIETY
5 Gender and Reform Mary Buckley	67
6 The Soviet Working Class Movement in the post-Socialist Perspective (The outlook in summer 1990) Leonid Gordon	81
7 The Roots of Political Reform: The Changing Social Structure of the USSR David Lane	95
III. THE ECONOMY	115
8 Soviet Economic Reform in Historical Perspective R. W. Davies	117
9 The Costs of Economic Reform: Lessons of the past for the future? Judith Shapiro	138

Contents

IV. IDEOLOGY AND CULTURE	159
10 Construction . . . reconstruction . . . deconstruction Julian Cooper	161
11 Literature under Gorbechev – A Second Thaw? Julie Curtis	168
V. THE REPUBLICS	181
12 Obstacles to Reform: The Siberian Dimension Caroline Humphrey	183
13 The State, Nationalism and the Nationalities Question in the Soviet Republics Graham Smith	202
VI. FOREIGN POLICY	217
14 The Soviet Union as a Revolutionary Power Alexander Dallin	219
Conclusions Ernest Gellner and Moshe Lewin	231
Index	245