

National Ideology Under Socialism

Identity and Cultural Politics in Ceaușescu's Romania

Katherine Verdery

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA PRESS

Berkeley / Los Angeles / Oxford

Contents

PREFACE	xi
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	xv
Introduction: Ideology, Cultural Politics, Intellectuals	1
Concepts and Terms	7
Ideology, Legitimacy, Hegemony	8
The Politics of Culture	12
Intellectuals	15
Methods	19
Organization of the Book	20
PART ONE: FRAMEWORKS
1
Antecedents: National Ideology and Cultural Politics in Presocialist Romania	27
Seventeenth through Nineteenth Centuries	30
How Romanian Identity Was Represented:
The Question of Origins	31
State Formation and Westernism	34
Romanticism, Dacianism, and the “National Essence”	36
Recapitulation	40
1900 to World War II	41
Defining the Nation Between East and West	46

	The Social Efficacy of Debates on the Nation	54
	Intellectuals Defend the Nation and Construct Themselves	55
	Intellectuals and the Disciplines	63
	2
	Modeling Socialism and Socialist Cultural Politics	72
	The Dynamics of "Real Socialism"	74
	Maximization Principles and Bureaucratic Allocation	74
	Weak States and the Mode of Control	83
	Socialism and Cultural Production	87
	3
	The Suppression and Reassertion of National Values in Socialist Romania	98
	General Developments in Romanian Politics after 1947	102
	From Minion to Maverick: The Romanian Party Draws Away from Soviet Domination	103
	Eliminating Reformism	106
	Regime Relations with Intellectuals	108
	The Reassertion of National Ideology in Romanian Culture and Politics	116
	Why National Ideology?	121
	PART TWO: CASES
	4
	The Means of Conflict: "Elitism," "Dogmatism," and Indigenizations of Marxism	137
	Foreign Imports, "Universality," and Representativeness	140
	"Elitism" and Cognizant Publics	142
	"Fascists," "Dogmatists," and "Proletcultists"	145
	Genealogical Appropriations: Eminescu as Proto-Marxist	156
	5
	Romanian Protochronism	167
	Clarifications	169
	The Birth of Protochronism	174

Writers and Party in Socialist Romania	184
Protochronism and Politics	188
The Determination of Value	188
Press Runs, Literary Canons, and Influence Within the Writers' Union	190
Cultural Authority, "Elitism," and Genealogical Appropriations	197
Competing Values and the Concentration of Culture in the Apparatus	202
Protochronism and Shortage	209
6
Historiography in a Party Mode: Horea's Revolt and the Production of History	215
Parameters of the Production of History in Socialist Romania	218
The Debate over Horea's Revolt	224
The Events	224
Meanings of the Debate	229
The Actors	229
The "Revolution" and National Identity	232
The "Uprising," Science, and Europe	234
The Production of the Debate: Individual and Institutional Competition	235
The Centralization of Historiography under Political Control	240
Historiography in a Party Mode	248
7
The "School" of Philosopher Constantin Noica	256
Who Was Constantin Noica?	260
The Battle over Noica as a Contest for Representativeness	266
The Definition of Philosophy and the Claims of Intellectuals	267
Salvation through Culture and the Production of Urgency	278
Representativeness and the Process of Cultural Reproduction	284
From Cultural Creation to Political Action	287
Unifying the Field of Opposition: Philosophy, Literary Criticism, and Ethics	287
Noicism, Power, and the Question of Audience	293

Conclusion	302
National Ideology under Socialism	305
Intellectuals, Opposition, and the Power of Discourse	309
NOTES	319
BIBLIOGRAPHY	367
INDEX	393

Figures

1-2	93
3	208
4	231