

Reinventing Germany
German Political Development Since 1945

Anthony Glees

BERG

Oxford · Washington, D.C.

Contents

Acknowledgements	xii
Preface	xiii
Table: German Federal Elections Results, 1949–94	xv
Introduction: Reinventing Germany	xvii
1 The Nazi Legacy: Hitler and Post-1945 German Political Culture	1
Post-1945 Germany and its Nazi Past	1
Nazism and Post-War Political Culture	3
Hitler and the Germans	5
Was Hitler a German Nationalist?	6
A Racist Germany	8
Opposition to the Nazis	12
The Resistance	13
Life Inside the Reich	16
The Nazi War Economy	18
Defeat – or Liberation?	20
The Dönitz Government – First Post-War German Government or Last Nazi One?	22
Complete Collapse	22
Just Another Beginning or the Year Zero?	24
2 The Occupation of Germany	26
Germany After Defeat	26
The Potsdam Conference	28
Common Allied Policies	31
Common Economic Policy	33
The Plan to Found a West German State	37
Occupation Policy in Germany: The USA	40
British Occupation Policy	43

Contents

French Occupation Policy	49
The Policy of the Soviet Union: Propaganda and Reality	50
What did Occupation Achieve?	57
The Establishment of a Separate West German State	58
3 The Re-emergence of German Political Life in the West: 1945–9	64
Adenauer's Part-Nation	64
Konrad Adenauer: Grandfathers and Fatherlands	67
Adenauer and Christian Democracy	74
Christian Democracy and West Germany	75
Adenauer and Statehood	81
Adenauer and the Genocide of the Jews	82
The Social Democratic Party	85
Kurt Schumacher	85
The Re-emergence of the SPD	88
4 Adenauer's High Policy	98
The Problem of Limited Sovereignty	98
Adenauer's Public Policy	101
A Westernizing Foreign Policy	102
Defence and Rearmament	103
The Treaties with the West	108
The 1953 Election	110
The Failure of the EDC Plan and West Germany's Entry into NATO	113
5 Adenauer's Model Germany: 1955–63	115
The West German Nation	115
Domestic Politics	119
The EEC	123
Nuclear Weapons and the SPD	125
The Berlin Ultimatum	126
European Integration	132
The End of the Adenauer Era	135
6 The Grand Coalition and the Brandt Chancellorship	141
Changing Course	141
The Making of the Grand Coalition	143

Contents

	The SPD and National Unity	147
	Domestic Issues	150
	A New Foreign Policy	154
	The Year of Two Elections	156
	Chancellor Willy Brandt	157
	Brandt's Second Administration	161
7	Ostpolitik	169
	West Germany Settled in the West	169
	Ostpolitik and German Unity	171
	Moscow and Warsaw	172
	Relations with the German Democratic Republic	173
	The Soviets and Berlin	176
	The Treaty with the Soviet Union	176
	The Bundestag and the Eastern Treaties	178
	Did Ostpolitik Help or Hinder the Cause of German Unity?	180
	Was Unity the Imperative of West German Policy?	182
	Brandt the Realist	184
	Living with Germany's Division	185
	Communist Subversion	186
	West German Secret Services	191
	The Impact of Subversion	192
	Brandt: The 'Other' German as West German Hero	195
8	The Two Helmut – Schmidt and Kohl, 1974–89	196
	Helmut Schmidt	196
	Economic Management	199
	Foreign Affairs	200
	The 1976 Election	204
	The 1980 Election	205
	The SPD After Schmidt	206
	Kohl's First Years	207
	The German Democratic Republic	213
9	Kohl and Unification in 1990: Germany Resurgent	219
	The Midwives of Unity: Kohl and Gorbachev	219
	Confusions in West German Foreign Policy	222
	Kohl and Gorbachev Before 1988	223
	The Zero Option	227

Contents

The 1989 GDR Elections	231
Gorbymania	232
The Soviets and the GDR Rulers	234
The East German Revolution	237
Confederation, Union and Unity	242
Unity at Last: A Genuine Turning-Point	245
Kohl: A Better Bismarck	246
Kohlmania	249
10 Germany After Unity: German Dominance – German Domination	253
A European Germany or a German Europe?	253
The Debate on Germany's National Interest	255
Problems in German Domestic Politics	259
German Economic Problems	261
The Right-Wing Extremist Threat	264
German Foreign Policy	271
German Military Power	273
A 'Fourth Reich'?	276
The New German Interest	279
Bibliography	281
Index	293