

Portraiture and Early Studio Photography in China and Japan

Edited by
Luke Gartlan and Roberta Wue

Contents

List of Figures	vii
List of Plates	xi
Notes on Contributors	xiii
Acknowledgments	xvi
Note on Transliteration	xvii
1 Introduction	1
LUKE GARTLAN AND ROBERTA WUE
PART I
Studios and Photographers	15
2 Shimizu Tōkoku and the Japanese Carte-de-visite: Circumscriptions of Yokohama Photography	17
LUKE GARTLAN
3 Group Encounters: Milton M. Miller’s Hong Kong and Canton Photographs	41
ROBERTA WUE
4 Powkec and the Era of Large Studios	59
YI GU
PART II
Sitters and Domestic Markets	77
5 Guiding the Sitter: Matsuzaki Shinji’s Dos and Don’ts for the Photographic Customer	79
SEBASTIAN DOBSON
6 Chinese Ideas of Likeness: Photography, Painting, and Intermediality	97
CLAIRE ROBERTS

7	Inscribed Photographic Portraits: Commemoration and Self-Fashioning in Republican-Period China	117
	RICHARD K. KENT
8	One, and the Same: The Photographic Double in Republican China	140
	H. TIFFANY LEE
 PART III
	Citizens and Subjects	157
9	The Fluidity of Representation: Early Photographs, Asakusa, and Kabuki	159
	MAKI FUKUOKA
10	From Private to Public: Shifting Conceptions of Women's Portrait Photography in Late Meiji Japan	174
	KAREN M. FRASER
11	The Republican Lady, the Courtesan, and the Photograph: Visibility and Sexuality in Early Twentieth-Century China	193
	JOAN JUDGE
 Appendix Matsuzaki Shinji's Dos and Don'ts for the Photographic Customer
	TRANSLATED BY SEBASTIAN DOBSON	211
	Glossary of Chinese and Japanese Characters	218
	Bibliography	224
	Index	243