The Dynamics of International Information Systems

Anatomy of a Grounded Theory Investigation

Springer

Contents

Chapter 1 Introduction 1
1.1 A Brief History of IIS 2
1.2 Frameworks in the Literature 4
1.3 Choice of the Research Method 6
1.4 Structure of the Book 7

Chapter 2 International Information Systems in the Literature 9
2.1 Scope and Depth of the Research into International Information Systems 9
2.2 Research into International Information System Until 1994 10
2.3 Relevant Research Since 1994 16

Chapter 3 Research Problem and Research Questions 19

Chapter 4 Research Methodology 23
4.1 Assembling the Research Approach 23
4.1.1 Position Within the Research Tradition 24
4.1.2 Theoretical Paradigms and Perspectives 25
4.1.3 Research Strategies 31
4.1.4 Collecting and Analyzing Empirical Materials 35
4.1.5 Interpretation and Presentation of Findings 41
4.2 Theory Building Issues 42
4.2.1 Theory Definition 43
4.2.2 Quality and Goodness of a Theory 45
4.2.3 Origin of the Theory Building Process 46
4.3 Conclusion 49

Chapter 5 Research Method: Grounded Theory for Descriptive and Exploratory Case Studies 53
5.1 Principles of Grounded Theory Procedure 54
5.2 Case Studies and Grounded Theory 57

5.3 The Application of Grounded Theory to Case Research 58
5.4 Research Activities Summary 61
5.5 Conclusion 64

Chapter 6 Foundation Case: The Australasian Food Co-op 67
6.1 Case History: Australasian Food Producers' Co-op 67
6.1.1 Business Background 68
6.1.2 The IS Landscape in the 1990s 70
6.1.3 The Global Information Systems Project 71
6.1.4 Technology Selection and Pilot Projects 71
6.1.5 The North American Pilot 72
6.1.6 Europe and Business Process Reengineering 73
6.1.7 From North America to the Middle East 74
6.1.8 Final Resistance to FIST 74
6.2 Findings and Interpretation of the Case 75
6.2.1 Categories and Properties 76
6.2.2 'Factor' Relationships: Dynamics Between the Business and IT Categories 80
6.2.3 The Nature of Factor Interactions: The Force Field 83
6.3 The First Theoretical Framework 88
6.4 Theoretical Sampling for the Next Case 91
6.4.1 Assessment of 'Saturation' Levels 91
6.4.2 Sampling Strategy and Requirements for the Next Case 94

Chapter 7 Case Two: J Lauritzen Ship Owners 99
7.1 Case History: J Lauritzen Ship Owners 99
7.1.1 J Lauritzen's Business 100
7.1.2 J Lauritzen's Global Business Strategy 102
7.1.3 The History of Information Systems in JL 103
7.1.4 Role of Information Systems in J Lauritzen's Operations 105
7.1.5 Central Versus Distributed Data and Applications 106
7.1.6 Structure and Strategy of Information Systems Management 107
7.2 Analysis of the J Lauritzen Case 108
7.2.1 Categories and Relations 109
7.2.2 Comparison of J Lauritzen and Co-op Cases 113
7.3 Enhancing the Theory: The 2nd Theoretical Framework 120
7.3.1 Architecture of International Information Systems 121
7.3.2 Alignment, Response and Force Fields 122
7.3.3 Response Cycles 123
7.3.4 Utility and Control 124
7.3.5 The Role of Design 124
7.3.6 IIS Development Skills 124
7.4 Theoretical Sampling 128
7.4.1 Contribution of the J Lauritzen Case 128

7.4.2 Categories' Saturation Levels 128
7.4.3 Assessment of Theorems 128

Chapter 8 Case Three: PANALPINA International Forwarders 133
8.1 Case History: PANALPINA 133
8.1.1 History of PANALPINA 135
8.1.2 Business Strategy 135
8.1.3 Nature of the Business 136
8.1.4 Information Systems in PANALPINA 138
8.1.5 Management of Information Systems 143
8.1.6 The Global Versus Local Philosophy 143
8.1.7 The Management of Projects 144
8.2 Analysis of the PANALPINA Case 147
8.2.1 New Categories 147
8.2.2 Main Interaction Between Categories 150
8.2.3 Comparison of the Co-op, J Lauritzen and PANALPINA Cases 153
8.3 Enhancing the Theory Further: The 3rd Theoretical Framework 160
8.3.1 Primary Theoretical Contributions 160
8.3.2 Secondary Theoretical Contributions 164

Chapter 9 A Substantive Theory of International Information Systems 169
9.1 Delimiting the 3rd Theoretical Framework 169
9.2 Shaping the Final Theory 171
9.2.1 Area I – The Generic Architecture of an International Information System 171
9.2.2 Area II – The Functional Quality of the IIS 173
9.2.3 Area III – The Dynamics among the Stakeholders of the IIS 174
9.3 Formulating the Substantive Theory of International Information Systems 185
9.3.1 Scope and Overview of the Theory 185
9.3.2 Propositional Notation of the Substantive Theory 187

Chapter 10 Discussion of the Theory and its Implications for Research and Practice 191
10.1 Salient Themes of the Theory: Previous and Future Research 191
10.2 Methodology Notes for Future Research 198
10.3 Strengths and Weaknesses of the Theory: Implications for Future Research 199
10.4 Implications for the Practitioner 204

Chapter 11 Conclusion 207
