

fa fr/M

An Overview of Issues for Further Liberalization of Trade in Services

Edited by
WTO Secretariat

INTERNATIONAL

London • The Hague ® Boston

WORLD TRADE ORGANIZATION

Foreword.....	v
Tables, boxes and charts.....	xxi

Chapter One

Economic effects of services liberalization.....	1
I. The role of services in economic development.....	1
II. The case for market liberalization.....	2
III. Policy implications.....	2
IV. Adjustment-related costs and benefits.....	4

Chapter Two

Accountancy services.....	7
I. Introduction.....	7
II. Description of the sector.....	8
Accounting and auditing services (CPC 8621).....	9
Bookkeeping services, except tax returns (CPC 8622).....	9
III. Economic importance of the sector and its main economic features.....	10
IV. Regulatory structures and relevant trade restrictions.....	13
V. Negotiations on accountancy services and existing commitments under the GATS.....	20
VI. Sources of additional information.....	23
Annex.....	24

Chapter Three

Advertising services.....	39
I. Main economic features.....	39
II. Regulatory structure and resulting trade effects.....	42
III. Current commitments under, the GATS.....	46
IV. International associations and other sources of information.....	47
Annex.....	49

Chapter Four

Air transport services.....	51
I. Introduction.....	51
II. Air transport services, covered by the Annex.....	52

ILL	Economic, trade and regulatory regimes governing aircraft
i	repair and maintenance services, computer reservation system services and selling and marketing of air transport services.....•.....	52
	(1) Aircraft repair and maintenance services	52
	(2) Computer Reservation Services	55
	(3) Selling and marketing of air transport services	64
II.2.	Analysis of commitments.....•.....	65
	(J) Preliminary remarks: relations between the Annex,
	the CPC and sui generis definitions	65
	(2) Aircraft repair and maintenance	66
	(3) Selling and marketing of air transport services	67
	(4) Computer reservation systems services•.....	69
	(5) Other commitments	69
	(6) Other MFN exemptions	70
II.3	Possible further work on the clarification of the scope of the Annex and on classification issues.....	70
III.	Other air transport services.....	73
III.1	Air transport services.....	73
	(1) The development of the general regulatory framework for air
	transport	73
	(a) Routes	75
	(b) Capacity	77
	(c) Tariffs	78
	(d) Other elements in bilateral agreements	79
	(2) Scheduled passenger services — economic, trade and
	regulatory characteristics	81
	(3) Non-scheduled passenger services: economic, trade
	and regulatory characteristics	85
	(4) Cargo services — economic, trade and regulatory
	characteristics	87
	(5) Landing slots	88
III.2	Ground services.....	90
IV.	Information sources.....	93
	Annex I: Tables.....	94
	Annex II: Recommendations of the ICAO Air Transport
	Regulation Panel.....	105
	Annex III: Scheduled and non-scheduled traffic at world's major airports.....	110
	Annex IV: IATA standard list of ground handling services: Guide to the facilities and services to be taken into account in determining airport costs.....	112

Chapter Five
A. Architectural and engineering services.....	117
I. Introduction.....	117
II. Economic importance of the sector.....	118
III. Regulatory structure and relevant trade restrictions.....	120
IV. Negotiations on architectural and engineering services and existing commitments under the GATS.....	125
V. Sources of information.....	127
Annex I: Definition of the sector.....	128
Annex II: Tables.....	130
Chapter Six
A. Audiovisual services.....	133
I. Introduction.....	133
II. Description of the sector.....	133
III. Economic importance of the sector and its main economic features.....	134
IV. Regulatory structure, relevant trade restrictions and industry support programmes.....	137
V. Negotiations on audiovisual services and existing commitments under the GATS.....	140
VI. Sources of additional information.....	142
Annex.....	143
Chapter Seven
A. Computer and related services.....	153
I. Introduction.....	153
II. Definition of the sector.....	154
III. Economic importance of the sector.....	156
IV. Trade and regulatory environment.....	161
V. Analysis of national schedules.....	168
VI. Points of contact and sources of statistics.....	170
References.....	176
Annex.....	178
Chapter Eight
A. Constitution and related service industries.....	181
I. Description of the sector.....	181
II. Economic importance of the sector.....	182
III. Regulatory structure and relevant trade restrictions.....	185
IV. Negotiations on construction services and existing commitments under the GATS.....	187
V. Sources of information.....	189
Annex.....	190

Chapter Nine	1
Distribution services.....	:	193
I. Introduction;.....	:	193
II. The distribution sector: definition, economic importance and industry structure.....		194
11.1 Defining distribution.....		194
11.2 The distribution sector in the economy.....		195
11.3 Industry structure.....	'	196
11.4 The impact of electronic commerce.....		198
III. Trade in distribution services.....		199
IV. Trade restrictions and regulatory structure.....		203
IV. 1 Explicit barriers to trade in services.....		203
IV.2 Domestic regulation.....		204
(1) Legislation on large-scale outlets.....		205
(2) Competition policy.....		206
IV.3 Spillovers from barriers to trade in goods.....		208
V. Analysis of existing commitments.....		208
V.I Limitations on market access and national treatment.....		210
V.2 Horizontal limitations.....		212
V.3 MTN exemptions.....		212
VI. Concluding issues.....		212
VII. Other sources of information.....	:	213
Bibliography.....		214
Annex.....	*	216
 Chapter Ten
Education services.....		229
I. Definition, economic importance and market structure of the sector....		229
1.1 Definition.....		229
1.2 Economic importance of the sector.....		230
1.3 Changing structure of the education market.....		232
II. International trade in the sector.....		235
II. 1 Education services trade by modes of supply.....	'	236
II.2 Barriers to trade:.....		237
III. Current commitments under the GATS.....		240
111.1 Sectoral coverage.....		240
111.2 Modal coverage.....		241
111.3 MFN exemptions.....		242
IV. Other sources of information.....		243
Annex I: Definition of education services.....		245
Annex II: Conventions of a standard-setting nature adopted under the auspices of UNESCO solely or jointly with other international organizations.....		248
Annex III: Tables.....		249

Chapter Eleven

Energy services.....	259
I. Introduction.....	259
II. Definition.....	260
III. Energy services.....	263
III.1 Coal.....	263
III.2 Petroleum.....	263
III.3 Electricity.....	264
III.4 Gas.....	266
III.5 Nuclear energy.....	267
III.6 Renewable energies.....	267
IV. Energy trade.....	268
V. Regional agreements.....	273
V.1 The European single energy market.....	273
V.2 The Energy Charter Treaty.....	274
V.3 NAFTA.....	276
V.4 ASEAN.....	276
V.5 APEC.....	277
VI. Regulation.....	278
VII. Specific commitments in energy services.....	281
Annex.....	283

Chapter Twelve

Environmental services.....	295
I. Introduction.....	295
II. Environmental services: definition, economic importance and industry structure.....	296
II.1 Defining environmental services.....	296
II.2 Size and structure of the environmental services sector.....	298
(1) Output and employment	298
(2) Importance of the public sector	300
(3) Market structure	300
(4) Technology trends	301
III. Trade in environmental services.....*	302
IV. Trade restrictions and regulatory structure.....	303
IV.1 Explicit barriers to trade.....	304
IV.2 Government procurement.....	305
IV.3 Export promotion policies and development, assistance.....	306
IV.4 Domestic regulations.....	306
(T) Environmental regulations	306
(2) Regulation of monopolies	308
IV.5 Spill-over from barriers to trade in goods.....	308
V. Analysis of existing commitments.....	309
V.I Horizontal limitations.....	310

V.2	Limitations on sectoral coverage.....	311
V.3	Limitations on market access and national treatment.....	312
VI.	Concluding issues.....	312
VII.	Other sources of information..... ;	313
	Bibliography.....	314
	Annex: Tables.....	316

Chapter Thirteen

	Financial services.....	331
I.	Introduction.....	331
II.	The sectoral classification of financial services.....	332
III.	The economic importance of the sector.....	335
	III.1 The importance of the sector in the domestic economy.....	335
	111.2 International trade in financial services.....	335
	111.3 The changing structure of the financial services industries and markets.....	337
	111.4 The impact of new technologies.....	338
	111.5 Financial services trade by modes of supply.....	339
	111.6 The role of the public sector.....	339
	111.7 Other players in the market.....	340
IV.	Regulation of the financial services sector.....	340
	IV.1 The objectives of financial sector regulation.....	340
	IV.2 Prudential and other domestic regulation versus trade restrictions.....	341
	IV.3 Trade restrictions and perceived trade barriers.....	344
	IV.4 The changing structure of financial services regulation.....	346
V.	Commitments under the GATS.....	349
VI.	Other sources of information.....	351
	Bibliography.....	352
	Annex.....	355

Chapter Fourteen

	Health and social services..... •	369
I.	Introduction.....	369
II.	Main economic features.....	370
	II.1 Objectives and constraints governing production and trade.....	370
	112 Health and medical services: contribution to GAP and employment.....	371
	113 Trade in health and medical services: some empirical evidence -..... •	374
III.	Regulatory structure and resulting trade effects.....	376
	III.1 General considerations.....	376
	III.2 Current institutional arrangements.....	378

III.3 Relevant disciplines under the GATS (other than part 111)	380
(1) Disciplines related to the organization of the health sector	381
(2) Regulatory arrangements and recognition problems...	383
IV. Current commitments under the GATS.....	387
IV.1 Market access and national treatment obligations.....	387
(1) Commitments for Modes 1, 2 and 3	387
(2) Commitments for Mode 4	389
(3) Additional considerations	390
(4) MFN exemptions	390
Annex.....	391
 Chapter Fifteen
Legal services.....	399
I. Introduction.....	399
II. The legal profession.....	400
III. Definition of legal services.....	402
IV. The legal services sector.....	403
V. Trade in legal services.....	404
VI. Regulatory barriers to trade.....	407
VI.1 Market access.....	407
VI.2 National treatment.....	408
VI.3 Domestic regulation.....	410
VII. Specific commitments and MFN exemption lists.....	415
VII.1 Market access.....	416
VII.2 National treatment.....	416
VII.3 Domestic regulation.....	418
VIII. International bodies.....	418
Bibliography.....	421
Annex.....	423
 Chapter Sixteen
Maritime transport services.....	429
I. Introduction: the maritime paradox: a lengthy and unfinished negotiation in a largely and increasingly liberalized sector.....	429
I.1 An unfinished negotiating history.....	429
I.2 A broadly liberalized sector.....	430
II. Recent regulatory and trade developments.....	432
II.1 Overview of economic developments.....	432
II.2 Overview of regulatory and trade developments.....	433
(1) Maritime transport	433
(2) Harbour services ..:	439
III. Analysis of commitments.....	441
IV. Possible areas for further work on classification matters.....	450
IV.1 Examination of the changes resulting from CPC Rev. 1.....	450

IV.2 Possible need for a composite classification ;	451
(1) Differences in coverage ;	451
(2) Differences in scope of commitments ;	452
(3) Possible further work ;	452
IV.3 The possibility of committing road transport and internal transport only for the land leg of a multimodal transport ;	453
(1) Road transport ;	453
(2) Internal waterways transport ;	454
IV. 4 Classification of certain peripheral services ;	455
(1) Harbour services delivered to non-transport vessels ;	455
(2) Rental and leasing of containers ;	455
(3) Dredging ;	455
(4) Classification societies ;	455
V. Sources of information ;	456
Annex I: World Trade Organization: Decision on maritime services ;	457
Annex II: Negotiating Group on Maritime Transport Services ;	459

Chapter Seventeen

Postal and courier services ;	463
I. Introduction ;	463
II. Economic importance, of the sector ;	465
11.1 Postal services ;	465
11.2 Courier services ;	467
III. Analysis of national schedules ;	469
III. 1. Postal services ;	469
III.2 Courier services ;	469
IV. How the services are supplied, how they are regulated and types of measures often perceived as barriers to trade ;	469
IV.1 Postal services ;	470
IV.2 Courier services ;	473
V. Sources of information and points of contact ;	475
References ;	477

Chapter Eighteen

Rail transport services ;	479
I. Overview of the- economic, trade and regulatory characteristics of rail transport ;	479
II. Preliminary remarks on the relevance of the classification to commitments ;	489
III. Analysis of commitments ;	490
IV. Information sources ;	492

.Annex I: MTN.GNS7W/120/CPC Provisional description of rail transport services.....	493
Annex II: Analytical tables of commitments.....	495
Chapter Nineteen
Road transport services.....	501
I. Introduction: road transport as part of land transport.....	501
II. Overview of the economic, trade and regulatory characteristics of the road transport sector.....	502
II. 1 Passenger transport.....	503
(1) Urban passenger transport	504
(2) Interurban passenger transport	509
II.2 Freight transport.....	511
III. Analysis of commitments:.....	517
111.1 Preliminary remarks! on the relevance of classification to commitments.....	518
111.2 Analysis of commitments.....	518
IV. Information sources.....	522
Annex I: MTN.GNS/W/120/CPC Provisional description of road transport services.....	523
Annex II: Analytical tables of commitments.....	527
Chapter Twenty
Telecommunication services.....	531
I. Introduction.....	531
II. Definition of the sector.....	533
III. Economic importance of the sector.....	535
IV. Analysis of GATS commitments.....	537
IV.1 Level of commitments by modes of supply.....	539
IV.2 Types of limitations maintained.....	540
V. Trade and regulatory environment.....	541
V.1 Competition and market structure.....	541
V.2 Regulatory issues.....	543
VI. Points of contact and sources of statistics.....	545
References.....	547
Annex.....	549
Chapter Twenty-one
Tourism services.....	563
I. Introduction.....	563
II. Description of the sector.....	564
III. Economic importance of the sector and its main economic features.....	565
IV. Regulatory structure and relevant trade restrictions.....	570

- V. Negotiations on tourism services and existing commitments under the GATS.....573
- VI. Sources of additional information.....574
- Annex.....575

Chapter Twenty-two

- Structure of commitments for Modes 1, 2 and 3.....591
- I. Introductory remarks.....591
- II. Contents, coverage and constraints.....591
- III. Patterns of commitments.....593
 - III. 1 General observations.....593
 - III.2 Structure of commitments for Mode 3.....594
- IV. Concluding remarks.....596
- Annex.....597

Chapter Twenty-three

- Presence of natural persons (Mode 4).....619
- I. Introduction.....619
- II. Trade and labour movement — some basic considerations.....621
 - II. 1 Effects of labour movements on the originating country.....623
 - II.2 Effects on the recipient country.....626
- III. Availability of statistical information on Mode 4 trade.....628
- IV. Measures affecting the presence of natural persons.....631
- V. Commitments under the GATS.....633
 - V.1 Market access and national treatment.....633
 - V.2 MFN exemptions.....636
- Annex I: 1. Terms and Definitions.....639
- Annex II: Tables.....640
- Appendix I: Guide to reading the GATS Schedules of specific commitments and the lists of Article II (MFN) exemptions.....651
- Appendix II: Services sectoral classification list.....657
- Index.....665