

An introduction

edited by

ALAN FINLAYSON and JEREMY VALENTINE

EDINBURGH UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Acknowledgements	page vi
Notes on the Contributors	vii
Introduction	i
Alan Finlayson and Jeremy Valentine
Part One Politics and the Subject
1 The Subject and Subjectivity Caroline Williams	23
2 The Theoretical Link Between Politics and the Subject Jeremy Valentine	36
3 The State and Sovereign Subjectivity James Martin	52
4 After the Subject of International Security Jenny Edkins	66
Part Two Doing Political Analysis
5 Ideology and Social Movements: the case of the FN Steve Bastow	83
6 The Work of Ideas and Interests in Public Policy Steven Griggs and David Howarth	97
7 Globalisation and the Constitution of Political Economy Glyn Daly	112
8 Complexity in the Wild: action in local welfare Will Medd	130
9 Political Science and Complexity Paul Haynes	145
Part Three Critique and Political Thought
10 The Horizon of Community Alan Finlayson	161
11 Critical Theory and Democracy Mark Devenney	176
12 The Singularity of the Political Robert Porter	193
13 Genres, Technologies and Spaces of Being-In-Common Michael J. Shapiro	206
Bibliography	223
Index	241