

A 342310

Managing globalisation in public utilities: public service transnational corporations and the case of the global water industry

Matthias Finger
Emanuele Lobina

UER: Management des entreprises publiques

Cahier de l'IDHEAP no 177
avril 1999

© 1999 IDHEAP, Chavannes-près-Renens
ISBN 2-940177-37-6

Contents

Introduction	1
1. The context: globalisation, privatisation of public utilities and TNCs' growth	2
1.1. Preliminary definitions and clarifications	4
1.2. The stream of public utility privatisations and its sources	6
1.3. International restructuring of public utilities, repercussions and related concerns	11
2. International restructuring and concentration in water supply and sewerage	16
2.1. The rationale for treating the water sector: water as an essential resource	16
2.2. The neo-liberal approach in the operation of water utilities and related concerns	18
2.3. Some mentions on the history of the water industry: the origins of French-based TNCs' market dominance	20
2.4. The international scale of privatised water utilities	21
2.5. TNCs' conduct and the dynamics of international concentration in the water sector	26
2.5.1. Integration and concentration in the water industry	26
2.5.2. Collusive conduct and concentration	28
2.5.3. Expansion to sectors other than water supply and sewerage	32
2.5.4. Abuse of corporate power and the need to regulate TNCs' conduct	36
3. TNCs' conduct in the water industry and the enabling regulatory framework	39
3.1. The domestic regulatory framework: the French model system	39
3.1.1. Supposed strengths and manifest weaknesses of the French model system	41
3.2. The domestic regulatory framework: the British model and price-cap regulation	44
3.3. International regulation of TNCs' conduct and anti-competitive practices	47
3.4. The WTO and GATT agreements following the Uruguay Round	49
3.5. Regulating standards in the global water industry	51
4. Designing alternative policies in the global water industry: towards a sustainable transnational re-regulation of monopolies?	54
4.1. Alternative policies strengthening the role of public enterprises	54
4.2. Towards an innovative international competition policy?	56
References	59
List of the most recent Cahiers de l'IDHEAP	65