

A 2002/ 239

Political Parties, Representation, and Electoral Democracy in Canada

Edited by William Cross

Contents

Acknowledgements / v

Chapter 1 Introduction
William Cross

Part I Political Parties

Chapter 2 A New Canadian Party System / 15
R. Kenneth Carty, William Cross, and Lisa Young

Chapter 3 Leadership Selection in New Brunswick: Balancing Language Representation and Populist Impulses / 37
William Cross

Chapter 4 Leadership Politics as Party Building: The Conservatives in 1998 / 55
David K. Stewart and R. Kenneth Carty

Chapter 5 Changes in the Party System and Anti-Party Sentiment / 68
Elisabeth Gidengil, André Blais, Richard Nadeau, and Neil Nevitte

Chapter 6 Wither or Whither the Populist Impulse in Western Canada? / 87
Roger Gibbins and Jennifer Stewart

Chapter 7 Populism and Community: The Cases of Reform and the Confederation of Regions Party in New Brunswick / 96
Chedly Belkhodja

Part II Representation

Chapter 8 Reforming Representational Building Blocks: Canada at the Beginning of the Twenty-first Century / 115
John Courtney

Chapter 9 Canadian General Elections and the Money Question / 132
Jennifer Smith and Herman Bakvis

Chapter 10 *Parties, Organized Interests, and Electoral Democracy: The 1999
Ontario Provincial Election / 145*
A. Brian Tanguay

- Chapter 11 Transnational Pluralism and the 'Democratization' of Canadian Foreign Policy at the Turn of the Millennium / 161
Denis Stairs
- Chapter 12 Representation of Women in the New Canadian Party System / 181
Lisa Young
- Chapter 13 Historical Influences on Regional Patterns of the Election of Women to Provincial Legislatures / 201
Louise Carbert
- Chapter 14 Damned If You Do, Damned If You Don't: Television News Coverage of Female Party Leaders in the 1993 Federal Election / 223
Elisabeth Gidengil and Joanna Everitt
- Contributors / 238
- Index / 241