

A HISTORY OF ZOROASTRIANISM

BY

MARY BOYCE

Professor of Iranian Studies
in the University of London

VOLUME TWO
UNDER THE ACHAEMENIANS

LEIDEN/KÖLN
E. J. BRILL
1982

CONTENTS

Foreword . . . . .	XI
Abbreviations . . . . .	XV
I. The Background . . . . . I
Retrospect: the date of Zoroaster; Doctrinal consequences of this dating; The preservation of the faith; The western Iranians in the settlement period; The subjection of the western Medes by Assyria; The coming of Zoroastrianism to the west through trade; The establishment of a kingdom by the eastern Medes; The Persians in Anshan; Medes, Scythians and the downfall of Assyria; The Median Empire and further contacts with Zoroastrian lands.
II. The pre-Zoroastrian Religion of the Medes and Persians. . . . . 14
The evidence; The gods; The myth of King Yama; The priesthood; Sacred places; Festivals and the calendar; Funerary rites; Influences from alien faiths: alien gods; i) Mithra and Shamash; ii) Anāhiti and Ishtar/Nana; iii) Tiri and Nabū; The influence of Babylonian learning; The re-dedication of festivals; The ceremonial use of an empty chariot; Traces of an alien cult; The adoption of an alien symbol; A modification of the baresman?; Conclusion.
III. The Spread of Zoroastrianism in Western Iran . . . . . 40
During the latter part of the seventh century; The religion of the Scythians; In the Achaemenian family (c. 600 +); Religious and political propaganda on behalf of Cyrus in Babylon; and in Ionia.
IV. Cyrus the Great (550-530 B.C.). . . . . 49
The campaigns of conquest; Pasargadae and its monuments; The fire-holders; The plinths and sacred precinct; The tomb of Cyrus; The Zendān-i Sulaimān; Sculptures of the gatehouse and audience-hall; The inscriptions at Pasargadae; Cyrus and alien faiths; The magi; the later identification of Cyrus with Kavi Vištāspa.
V. Cambyses (530-522 B.C.) . . . . . 70
The death and entombment of Cyrus; Cambyses in Egypt; The marriages of Cambyses.
VI. Bardiya and 'Gaumāta the Magus' (522 B.C.) . . . . . 78
Usurpation of the Persian throne by Bardiya; the story of Gaumāta; the religious implications in the story; the significance of the 'Magus'; the āyadāna.
VII. Darius the Great (522-486 B.C.) . . . . . 90
The establishing of his rule; The six noble conspirators and the six Ameša Spentas; The Behistun relief; The palaces of Darius and their sculptures: i) Susa; ii) Persepolis; The figure in the winged circle; The winged disk; The interpretation of the winged symbol; Other symbols of power in the Persepolis sculptures; Symbols of long life and immortality; Persepolis, 'Nō Rūz', and *Mithrakāna; The tomb of Darius; The religious elements in the carvings above the tomb; The Ka'ba-yi Zardūšt; The tomb of Parnaka (?); The religious elements in Darius' inscriptions; Darius' policy toward alien faiths: i) The Egyptians; ii) The Elamites; iii) The Jews; iv) In Drangiana.

VIII.	Finds of religious interest at Persepolis . . . . .	132
	The Elamite tablets; Priests' and ceremonies in the fortification tablets; The scribes of Persepolis; The gods of the fortification tablets; Some theophoric names of Zoroastrian character; A Zoroastrian personal name; The Persepolis tablets and the calendar; Religious scenes on Persepolis seal impressions; The pestles and mortars from the treasury.
IX.	Contacts and influences in Ionia in the Median and early Achaemenian periods . . . . .	150
	The god of Time; Zoroastrianism and early Ionian philosophy: a) The philosophers of Miletus; i) Thales; ii) Anaximander; iii) Anaximenes; b) Heraclitus of Ephesus; Zoroastrianism and the early Orphics; Conclusion.
X.	Xerxes (486-465 B.C.) . . . . .	164
	Religious observances in Herodotus' account of the Greek war; The legends of Ostanes and Gobryas; The Lycian tomb of a hero of Salamis?; Xerxes at home; the Daiva inscription; A copy of one of Darius' tomb-inscriptions; Xerxes' own tomb.
XI.	Artaxerxes I (465-424 B.C.) . . . . .	178
	The end of the use of Elamite, and the development of an Iranian scribal tradition; Herodotus on Persian religion; Xanthos of Lydia; A 'place of rites'; Artaxerxes I and Egypt; Themistocles; Megabyzus and Syria; Artaxerxes I and the Jews: i) Nehemiah; ii) Ezra; iii) The Priestly Code and Zoroastrian influences; Democritus of Abdera; Artaxerxes I and Babylonia.
XII.	Darius II (423-404 B.C.) . . . . .	198
	The inscriptions of Darius II; Darius II in Babylonia and Egypt; Darius II and the Jews; The sons of Darius II; The promotion of the cult of Anāhiti/Anāhita; Promotion of the cult of Tiri; Two more Iranian-Lycian tombs; The last years of Darius II's reign.
XIII.	Artaxerxes II (404-358 B.C.) . . . . .	209
	A rite of royal initiation; The rebellion of Cyrus the Younger; Two funerary monuments; Xenophon on the Persians; Artaxerxes II and the cult of 'Anāhita'; The role of Parysatis; The advancement of Anāhita; A priestess of Anāhita; A sanctuary of Spenta Ārmaiti?; The Anāhita temples and Artaxerxes' fame; The establishment of the temple cult of fire; The 'Victorious Fires'; The remains of Achaemenian temples; The terminology of the new temple cults; The priesthood and temple worship; Zurvanism; The basis of the Zurvanite heresy; The development of Zurvanite myth and doctrine; Zurvanite fatalism and the concept of the 'Great Years'; The Zurvanite millenary scheme; Zurvan's quaternity; Zurvan in Avestan texts; Evidence for the establishing of Zurvanism under the Achaemenians; The earlier purity of the orthodox faith; The three Saošyants or World Saviours; The creation of the Zoroastrian calendar; The establishing of new name-day feasts; The promotion of Sraoša; The development of western Iranian scholastic literature; Two allusions to pious domestic practices; The spread of the image cult to other yazatas; The political background of Artaxerxes II's reign; The monument of Payava; Plato and Zoroastrianism; The linking of Plato with Zoroaster in a millenary scheme; Plato and Zoroastrian ethics; Artaxerxes II's last years, and his tomb; Retrospect: the religious developments in Artaxerxes II's reign.

XIV. Artaxerxes III (358-338 B.C.) . . . . .	264
The reconquest of Egypt; A trilingual stele of Xanthos; A Persian Ministry for Pious Foundations?; Mithra Khšathrapati?; Religious syncretism, symbiosis and interpretation; Some evidence from coins; Graeco-Persian gems and seals; The Arebsun inscriptions; The Treasure of the Oxus; Zoroastrianism in the east during the Achaemenian epoch; Pilgrimage as a unifying factor; Zoroastrianism in India; Aristotle and Iran; Artaxerxes III's inscriptions and tomb; Artaxerxes III's death.
XV. Darius III (336-331 B.C.) . . . . .	285
Arses and the Corinthian League; The accessions of Darius III and Alexander; Alexander's early campaigns; The battle of Issus; The battle of Gaugamela; The end of the first phase of conquest; The massacre at Persepolis; Alexander at Pasargadae; Alexander's eastward march and the death of Darius III; Zoroastrianism and the Macedonian conquest.
Select bibliography . . . . .	293
Index . . . . .	297