

A Tropical House The Embassy of Switzerland in New Delhi

Edited by Bruno Maurer

Photographs by Ariel Huber and Walter Ruegg

gta Verlag

Contents

Preface by Didier Burkhalter

On the upswing: relations between Switzerland and India are expanding and gathering pace

Photographs by Ariel Huber

The Embassy of Switzerland in New Delhi: the architecture

Essay by Linus vonCastelmur

A stage for work and life:
approaches to the Embassy building in New Delhi

Essay by
Marc Perrenoud

An old republic and an ancient country: relations between Switzerland and India

Essay by
Anupam Bansal

Extending Imperial Delhi:
the Diplomatic Enclave of Chanakyapuri

Photographs by
Walter Ruegg

Under a single roof: building operations, 1960-1963

Essay by
Bruno Maurer

Development of a tropical house: the planning and construction of the Embassy of Switzerland in New Delhi

Plans and time schedule

The definitive project:
compound, main building,
garden and swimming-pool

Building site journal, 1963

Essay by
Ariel Huber

Building an independent nation: Achyut Kanvinde and modern architecture in India

Photographs by
Ariel Huber

Chancery and Residence: interior views

Essay by Arthur Rugg

Not just Chandigarh: in the footsteps of Swiss architects in India

Photographs by
Ariel Huber

The compound and the Staff Quarters

Appendix

Biographical
notes

Notes on contributors

Synopsis 1915-2013

The Ambassadors
of Switzerland in India since 1947

Index and credits

Acknowledgements